CAPTAIN CAMPBELL ARRIVES HERE WITH MYSTERIOUS RACER

Confident Odd Looking,
Auto Can Pass Se-
grave Record

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Captain Malcolm Campbell, British "speed demon," arrived on the Berengaria today, bringing with him his own specially-designed "mystery" racing car, the "Bluebird," with which he hopes to break the world's automobile speed record of 203 miles an hour.

The powerful automobile looks like a cross between a whale and an airplane. Its huge detachable fin makes it look more like an airplane than a land machine. The captain will drive the car at the racing carnival which will be held late this month at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Captain Campbell gives more the impression of an English actor than one of the speediest men in the world. His manner is leisurely and he wears Bond St. clothes. His forty-three years have been filled with adventure, including pioneering in aeronautics and motor racing and distinguished service in the World War.

He began to pile up automobile speed records shortly after the war ended. He held the record successively of 136 miles per hour, 143 miles an hour, 146 miles an hour and finally 152 miles an hour. His fellow-countryman, Major Seagrave, came over last year, however, and hung up a record of 203.5 miles an hour, which is the present record that Captain Campbell is now shooting at.

"The trouble is," smiled the captain, "that the older I get the faster I have to go. When I am sixty I suppose I shall be doing 600 miles an hour."

Captain Campbell believes that there is almost no limit to the speed automobiles may attain provided conditions for driving are suitable and provided the efficiency of tires increases at greater and greater speeds are demanded.

The "Bluebird" weighs nearly three tons. It was designed and built by Capt. Campbell himself in his own workshop. It has not yet been tried out on any track, although wind tunnel tests have revealed its remarkable power.

There are only two beaches in Great Britain, he explained, "where one can allow a car to develop any real speed. They are at Pendine in Cornwall and Southport in Lancashire. These sand beaches were satisfactory for speeds up to 150 miles an hour but beyond that they are dangerous. And 150 miles an hour is just 'dawdling' along, isn't it? America has the finest beaches in the world and down at Daytona I look forward to travelling faster than I have ever done before—perhaps faster than anyone has ever travelled."

Captain Campbell will literally "shoot" in his "Bluebird." He said the fresh-looking car is not unwieldy to handle. Discarding the big detachable fin and other new gadgets he explained that when the car is really travelling it begins to "float" and some form of rudder is necessary to maintain direction and stability. At 200 miles an hour the back wheels show a dangerous tendency to leave the ground.

The United States is the only place that has a ten mile straightaway course available on a hard beach. It takes four and a half miles to accelerate the "Bluebird" and at 200 miles an hour the car would go virtually a hundred yards a second.

Her wheels at that speed make thirty revolutions a second. Very little momentum could be obtained concerning the motors since they are on the secret list of the British War Department.

Captain Campbell said prohibition is not going to worry him he said he never drinks or smokes before a race anyway. He will carry no mascot other than a little badge of St. Christopher, patron saint of travel.

MISS RINGS FROM HANDS OF CORPSE

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 8.—Two rings—a gold wedding band, and a small diamond set—reported to have disappeared from the body of Mrs. Katherine Markham, were the object of a police search here today. The rings, according to the husband, disappeared from Mrs. Markham's fingers between the time of her death at a hospital and the time of its arrival at a mortuary. The undertaker reports the rings were not on the body when it arrived at his place.

CUBA PREPARES TO GREET 'LINDY'

ANGUISHED FATHER PREPARES TO TELL STORY ON STAND AT TRIAL OF HICKMAN FOR MURDER

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 8.—"My God, look at my little girl." Pathos, grim, masked, approached the stage in the Marion Parker court drama today as an anguished father prepared to repeat his tragic lines.

"My God, look at my little girl," the horrified father of Marion Parker shrieked on that night when he took in his arms the dead thing which had been his living daughter.

Perry M. Parker, seeking justice, awaited his time today to come in to the courtroom where William Edward Hickman is on trial for kidnapping and murder, to tell of his sufferings.

He has not laid his eyes upon Hickman since the night he paid for Marion's mutilated body with a handful of $20 bills.

The father was among the last of the state's witnesses remaining to be called as Hickman's trial, which has turned into a sanity hearing, neared its close.

County Autopsy Surgeon A. F. Wagner, who knew Marion as a little friend, was another of the remaining witnesses.

Outside the courtroom danger stalked as the hour approached when the jury of four women and eight men must decide whether Hickman was sane or crazy when he stole and slew the 12-year-old school girl.

Threats of violence menaced the lives of the judge and jury alike, no matter what the outcome of the trial.

The jurors, unaware of the lurking danger, were being doubly guarded following an anonymous threat to "blow up the whole bunch," if Hickman escaped the extreme penalty for his crime.

When the case was heard here, detectives testified they followed Kresge from the church to his love nest with Gladys Adele Fish.

According to the Rev. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of the church, action may be taken to drop Kresge's name from the membership rolls.

DETROIT, Feb. 8.—The Michigan Law Enforcement League will not accept gifts from Sebastian S. Kresge, "five-and-ten" millionaire until he explains the charges involving immorality and drinking of which he was found guilty by a jury in the divorce suit of his wife, Doris Mercer Kresge.

L. R. Bowen, secretary-treasurer of the Michigan Law Enforcement League, today issued this statement:

"Owing to the many inquiries reaching us, I wish to say we have instructed our representatives to accept no contributions from S. S. Kresge until he makes satisfactory reply to the charges involving personal immorality and liquor drinking."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Anti-Saloon League has no intention of returning to S. S. Kresge, multi-millionaire prohibitionist, the $500,000 which he recently gave the league for propaganda work in advancement of the dry cause according to F. Scott McBride, head of the organization.

Rep. Boylan (D) of New York, demanded in congress yesterday that the gift be returned as "tainted money" because of revelations of Kresge's love nest and drinking parties contained in Mrs. Kresge's divorce action in New York.

"Of course we are not going to return it," said McBride.

After he and Miss May were set upon, Herron told police, the girl was kidnapped and he was bound and thrown into a waterhole. His cries attracted nearby residents, he said.

A tow rope, part of which was used in tying Herron's feet, two axes, a button from Miss May's dress, her broken eye glasses, some loose coins and her compact were found on the floor of the auto, police say.

Herron's face bore many scratches, police reported.

Four New Philadelphia young women have during the past two weeks reported to police that they had been accosted by an unknown man termed "the hugger." The description, police say, fits that of Herron.

GOVERNOR JACKSON OF INDIANA GOES ON TRIAL FOR BRIBERY

Executive Accused Of Trying To Control
Appointment

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 8.—Ed Jackson, thirty-second governor of Indiana, was to go on trial here today on a charge of conspiring to commit bribery.

The governor planned to waive arraignment and enter a plea of not guilty as the trial opened.

The case is the outgrowth of the sensational political scandals of 1927 that resulted in the indictment of sixteen Hoosier public officials. One of Indiana's greatest court battles was forecast.

The scene in the historic Marion County criminal court-room was a repetition of that of March 17, 1924, when Governor Warren T. McCray faced the same bar of justice charged with embezzlement and grand larceny.

Only today ex-Governor McCray, back from a felon's cell in the Atlanta Federal Prison, was the state's chief witness against his successor.

The state of Indiana will seek to prove through McCray that Jackson and his co-defendants offered McCray $10,000 and immunity in Indiana courts in 1923 for the appointment of James E. McDonald, a Ku Klux Klan favorite, as prosecutor of Marion County, one of the most powerful offices in Indiana politics. The state also will try to convince the jurors that McCray kept silent for four years about the alleged bribery attempt because of fear inspired by the defendants. This the state contended constituted the conspiracy which nullified the two-year statute of limitations.

RELIEF NEEDED

POMEROY, O., Feb. 8.—The situation as regards to hungry children of coal miners in the Pomeroy Bend district was reported growing serious here today and soliciting here of funds and clothing for children of mine strikers in the Hocking Valley was stopped. FLIGHT FROM HAITI STARTED WITH GOOD WEATHER FAVORING

Pan-American Meet In Background As Flyer Nears

HAVANA, Feb. 8.—The sixth Pan-American congress and its entailing problems of intervention, states' rights and other matters of international diplomacy faded into the background today as all Havana made ready to welcome Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The young aviator, carrying unofficially a unique portfolio as America's ambassador of good will, was due here this afternoon between three and four o'clock.

A group of representative officials and a great crowd of enthusiastic Cubans were at Columbia Field to hail Col. Lindbergh's plane as it soars over Cuba from Port Au Prince, Haiti.

Once landed at the field, Col. Lindbergh will be rushed in an automobile to the palace of President Machado where he will be received by the chief executive, members of the diplomatic corps, and the delegates to the Pan-American Congress.

This evening, the young flyer will be allowed to rest, but tomorrow he will begin a strenuous five days of receptions, banquets and official functions.

According to the present schedule, Col. Lindbergh will leave here next Monday on a non-stop flight to St. Louis.

PORT AU PRINCE, HAITI, Feb. 8.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took off for Havana at 6:35 a. m. today. The president of the high commission and cabinet officers were among the crowd at the field that gave Col. Lindbergh his send-off.

After the take-off Lindbergh circled the field, then turned towards Port Au Prince over which he flew, leading a detachment of six marine planes. After circling the city Lindbergh flew back to the field which he circled at a low altitude, meanwhile waving his hand from the window of his plane's cockpit. After his farewell demonstration he turned his plane towards Havana and was soon lost to view in the morning mists off the coast line.

Despite the early hour of departure, a good sized crowd was at the flying field to speed the Spirit of St. Louis on its way.

Weather conditions were good and Col. Lindbergh made a fine take off. He said he had enjoyed his stay in this picturesque old city very much, having always had a desire to visit it and see some of its historic spots.

Before his departure the flying colonel was the object of much attention from pretty Haitian girls who took every opportunity to pelt him with flowers. Col. Lindbergh's living quarters at the guest house were banked high with bouquets of every description.

President Borno and other members of the government believe that the visit of Col. Lindbergh will act as a stimulus to aid the growth of aviation in Haiti, Santo Domingo and other Caribbean countries.

Maternal Tragedy

Because she didn't want her three-week-old son to "face the struggles and poverty" she had been through, Mrs. Eleanor Presley, 32, of Cleveland, O., told detectives she smothered the child, police announce in charging her with murder. Mrs. Presley has another child—a girl, six.

SENATE FACES BILL THAT BLOCKS THIRD TERM OF PRESIDENT

Adoption Will Bar Proposed Drafting Of Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—With the whole political world watching, the senate was ready today to go on record endorsing the anti-third term tradition, which bars from the White House any president after two terms of service.

The La Follette resolution, declaring against third terms and specifically urging President Coolidge to adopt a similar resolution when he takes office, was being considered.

Its adoption was looked upon as dealing a death blow to hopes of some Republican leaders that the president will be "drafted" by the Kansas City convention.

The resolution also would place the senate on record for the first time in its history on the third term issue. The house declared its convictions a half century ago by adopting a similar resolution when President Grant was seeking a third term. The La Follette resolution paraphrased the resolution against Grant but added an additional paragraph, commending Mr. Coolidge to "observance" of the tradition.

Many of the greatest figures in American history were paraded in the debate. The views of Washington, who founded the tradition, of Jefferson, who put it in effect, of Madison, Cleveland and Roosevelt, who endorsed it, were aired while the careers of Jackson and Lincoln, Grant and Wilson were discussed.

The pending vote was being watched with interest because two publicly announced candidates for the Republican nomination—Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, and Frank B. Willis, of Ohio—will record themselves. Both were expected to vote for the resolution on the final roll call.

REPORT MRS. GRAYSON'S PLANE FOUND IN CANADA; PROBE STORY

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Frances Grayson's plane, The Dawn, which disappeared last December off the New England coast while enroute from Long Island to Newfoundland, is reported to have been found in Canada.

Edward Koehler of this city, whose brother Fred was the motor expert aboard the plane, declared today he had information indicating that The Dawn had been found in the Abitibi region of northern Canada. He declined to give any further details until the report was investigated.

Koehler was questioned by newspapermen after it was discovered that he had sent a telegram to a woman in Boston saying "Dawn located." The name of the woman was not learned.

GOVERNMENT HEARS MEXICO ORGANIZING TO SUPPORT REBELS

Will Request Morrow To Probe Report In Mexico City

M A N AGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 8.—There were indications today that another flare up of fighting is imminent between the Nicaraguan rebels under Gen. Augusto Sandino and the United States marines stationed in the sectors of Matagalpa and Jinotega. Sandino, who has been mysteriously missing for a fortnight, is reported in the region of Jinotega reorganizing his forces and making ready for ambush attacks against the United States forces. Many civilians have fled, fearing attacks that would imperil their lives.

It was reported that President Diaz's government has received confidential reports from agents in Mexico City that a new movement is being organized in Mexico to support increased rebel activity against the Diaz government and the United States occupational forces.

There is no official confirmation of the reports, for the government officials refuse to discuss them. It is assumed, however, that the United States state department will ask Dwight W. Morrow, the United States ambassador to Mexico, to investigate the reports to determine if they have any basis.

There has been a long lull in the skirmishing between the Sandinistas and the United States intervention forces.

On January 21 a Nicaraguan named Thomas Mendez was shot to death. He held the commission of lieutenant in the rebel forces. When his body was found near San Fernando Del Norte documents were found in the pockets purporting to show that a number of U. S. Marines had been killed in a battle. It is assumed that the documents were for propaganda purposes as nothing was known about any such battle.

MADDEN SHUTS DOOR ON EXPENDITURES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The country will be confronted with a "five-billion dollar congress" in the near future unless the brakes are applied to annual appropriations. Rep. Martin B. Madden (R) of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriation committee, warned today.

Arraigned by the action of the house in overriding the committee and increasing appropriations in the $400,000,000 army supply bill, Madden opened a fight upon "the raiders of the treasury."

Other congressional leaders, fearing a "runaway" congress in a campaign year, got into action to keep appropriations down to the $4,295,586,231 appropriated last session to run the government for one year.

BECK FAVORED IN COMMITTEE REPORT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—James M. Beck (R) of Pennsylvania, whose seat in the house is contested, will win a favorable report of house elections committee No. 2, it was indicated today. Rep. Vincent (R) of Michigan, chairman, will call the committee into session tomorrow to consider the case.

The committee is composed of six Republicans and three Democrats. One member predicted solid Republican backing for Beck, and possibly one Democratic vote.

Beck appeared confident that the committee will hold he was a legal resident of Philadelphia when he was elected to congress.

MARGARET D. KAHN

ANOTHER marriage that brings together two of the wealthiest and most socially prominent families in the United States is in the offing.

The principals in this blue-blooded romance are Margaret D. Kahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn of New York, and John Barry Ryan, Jr., son and heir of the noted millionaire and grandson of Thomas Fortune Ryan.

Following the formal announcement of the engagement, young Ryan was discovered working as a reporter on a Newark (N. J.) paper. Ryan grinned, confirmed the report, and then waved would-be interviewers away, telling them that he had to hop out and get on a story that had just "broken."

No date for the marriage has been set.

Miss Kahn is 26 and her millionaire-reporter-fiance is just one year older. The bride-to-be's father is head of the powerful financial house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and long noted for his philanthropies as well as generous subsidies to the musical and theatrical world.

OHIO GASOLINE TAX SHOWS BIG INCREASE UNDER HIGHER RATE

The gasoline tax collection in Ohio during the last six months ending December 31, 1927, amounted to $13,211,404.79, almost the same as for the entire twelve months preceding July 1, 1927, according to a comparative report on tax collections obtained by the auto club.

The statement shows an enormous increase in the gas tax, even at three cents. The change from two cents to three cents per gallon was effective in May, 1927.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, $12,767,504.49 was collected; and for the year ending June 30, 1927, $13,845,986.55 was collected.

Under the three-cent tax, it is estimated that these collections for 1928 will total $25,000,000. Of this amount, 45 per cent will be allotted to the state highway department, 25 per cent equally to the eighty-eight counties and the remaining 30 per cent to the cities and villages, according to the number of motor vehicles.

All of the money must be used for roads and streets and for no other purpose. Based on this estimated collection for 1928, Greene County will be entitled to $7,102.

FREED OF CHARGE

CANTON, O., Feb. 8.—Sergeant of police Otto Miller today stood exonerated by Coroner T. C. McQuate in the shooting of Furman Henson, 21-year-old North Edinfield youth, January 29, as a result of which Henson died January 31.

Coroner McQuate said he was convinced that the officer acted in line of duty.

Yellow Springs

At a meeting of the joint high school boards Wednesday, action was taken toward the uniting of the Antioch Academy and the high school. It is the plan for the academy students to enter the high school next fall. The new high school building will be under construction this year but it is doubtful if it will be ready for use at that time.

Miss Leontine Jenks, linotype operator at the Antioch Press was heard over the radio from station WLW, Cincinnati, Saturday afternoon. Miss Jenks is a very accomplished violinist.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jesse Campbell on Limestone St.

The Social Service Committee held an all-day meeting at the home of Mrs. G. F. Littleton Thursday and made handkerchiefs for the small school rooms. At noon a covered dish dinner was served. In the afternoon, Miss Julia Turner of Antioch College under whose supervision the domestic science class of the college is preparing lunches for noon time at the public school, gave a talk, telling what had been done the past week with this experiment and what they hoped to accomplish. There was also an interesting discussion on the welfare of the children in the community. Those present were: Miss Julia Turner, Miss Mayme Baker, Mrs. D. A. Brewer, Mrs. J. H. Garlough, Mrs. W. E. Littleton, Mrs. S. W. Cox, Mrs. Ed Hackett, Mrs. Caroline Loe and the hostess Mrs. G. F. Littleton.

The Library Club will meet with Mrs. L. L. Taylor Monday afternoon, February 13 at 2:30. "Backgrounds" will be the subject of Mrs. A. E. Morgan's talk.

An entertainment "Paul Lawrence Dunbar Memorial" will be given in the Opera House, Wednesday evening, February 15. W. C. King of Dayton will give a number of readings and dialogues of Dunbar's. Music will be given by the high school students under the direction of Miss Clara Hirst. This entertainment is in charge of the Junior Class of the high school.

Miss Mary Stewart, who has just completed her kindergarten course in New York, left Sunday for Columbus, where she has secured a position in her line of work in the Columbus schools.

Mrs. Clarence Anderson spent the week-end with friends in West Liberty.

New Hair Style from New York

"I've so little time to myself," says Mildred Warshaw, lovely New York City girl who lives at 1353 42nd Street Brooklyn. "That's why it's been such a help to me to learn the new way so many of my girl-friends are doing their hair. Now I just put a few dashes of Danderine on my brush every time I use it. It makes my hair easy to dress and holds it in place. All I need is one shampoo a month, now. It stopped my dandruff, and my hair is always gleaming and silky, instead of looking dull and straggly like it did before I started using Danderine."

Danderine does more to bring out the natural color, the gleam and lustre of your hair, than any shampoo or treatment. It removes all the dust, grime and oily film from your hair—tones and refreshes your scalp—keeps dandruff away. All drug stores have the 35c bottles. Lovely hair and a healthy scalp for a few cents!

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McGLONE GIBSON
DIVINE UNREST

Some woman has asked, "What is it that women want?" Then she answers the question by affirming that "what they want is contentment."

I do not believe that any thinking human being is ever content—if he is, then he lacks imagination, vision, ambition, desire—everything which makes life worth living.

Whenever I see or hear the word "contentment," I always think of a certain advertisement which showed a beautiful meadow with a background of hills and a laughing rivolet at its foot. Standing knee deep in the lush clover are a number of "contented cows."

To human beings only is given the glorious impetus of discontent. Dogs are perfectly content when they are physically comfortable and so are all other animals who are not endowed with souls.

The lady who tells us that "contentment is what a woman wants" probably means that contentment is what a woman needs.

If Columbus had been content with the prevailing idea that the earth was flat, we might not today be wondering here in America whether Calvin Coolidge, the thirty-third president of the United States, would possibly consent to stand for a second term.

If Eli Whitney had been content to clean cotton with his fingers, we would never have been able to reduce the great staple to modern incomes.

If Mr. Ford had been content with the horse as a vehicle of getting from place to place, we would not now be sending our beautiful moving picture actresses to jail for going sixty miles an hour on Mr. Rockefeller's substitute for a fuel with which our forefathers perhaps were content.

85 YEARS of Life Insurance IDEALS and SERVICE!

An ideal became a reality when, on February 1st, 1843, "The Mutual Life of New York" issued its first policy. The business of life insurance on the mutual plan started in America then and there.

Priority in its field is not the Company's claim to greatness—age in itself is no great distinction. The Mutual Life began with high ideals of business conduct, which still prevail. It aims at quality and to be highly honorable in all its dealings.

In its relations with policyholders and their representatives The Mutual Life has an outstanding record; and it quotes with pride from the report of the last periodical examination of its affairs by the Insurance Department of the State of New York:

"A large volume of new business, selected according to the company's high standards was placed on the books. The rate of mortality has declined to a very low point and as a result it was possible to distribute to policyholders dividends according to successive increasing scales. Investments are particularly well secured. At the same time policy contracts have been liberalized and clarified, and the treatment accorded to the policyholders and their representatives has been eminently fair and just."

MARGARET D. KAHN

ANOTHER marriage that brings together two of the wealthiest and most socially prominent families in the United States is in the offing.

The principals in this blue-blooded romance are Margaret D. Kahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn of New York, and John Barry Ryan, Jr., son and heir of the noted millionaire and grandson of Thomas Fortune Ryan.

Following the formal announcement of the engagement, young Ryan was discovered working as a reporter on a Newark (N. J.) paper. Ryan grinned, confirmed the report, announced that he would keep right on at his profession, and then waved would-be interviewers away, telling them that he had to hop out and get on a story that had just "broken."

No date for the marriage has been set.

Miss Kahn is 26 and her millionaire-reporter-fiance is just one year older. The bride-to-be's father is head of the powerful financial house of Kahn, Loeb & Co., and long noted for his philanthropies as well as generous subsidies to the musical and theatrical world.

OHIO GASOLINE TAX SHOWS BIG INCREASE UNDER HIGHER RATE

The gasoline tax collection in Ohio during the last six months ending December 31, 1927, amounted to $13,211,944.79, almost the same as for the entire twelve months preceding July 1, 1927, according to a comparative report on tax collections obtained by the auto club.

The statement shows an enormous increase in the gas tax, even at three cents. The change from two cents to three cents per gallon was effective in May, 1927.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, $12,767,504.49 was collected; and for the year ending June 30, 1927, $13,845,986.55 was collected.

Under the three-cent tax, it is estimated that these collections for 1928 will total $25,000,000. Of this amount, 45 per cent will be allotted to the state highway department, 25 per cent equally to the eighty-eight counties and the remaining 30 per cent to the cities and villages, according to the number of motor vehicles.

All of the money must be used for roads and streets and for no other purpose. Based on this estimated collection for 1928, Greene County will be entitled to $7,102.

Yellow Springs

At a meeting of the joint high school boards Wednesday, action was taken toward the uniting of the Antioch Academy and the high school. It is the plan for the academy students to enter the high school next fall. The new high school building will be under construction this year but it is doubtful if it will be ready for use at that time.

Miss Leontine Jenks, linotype operator at the Antioch Press was heard over the radio from station WLW, Cincinnati, Saturday afternoon. Miss Jenks is a very accomplished violinist.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jesse Campbell on Limestone St.

The Social Service Committee held an all-day meeting at the home of Mrs. G. F. Littleton Thursday and made handkerchiefs for the small school rooms. At noon a covered dish dinner was served. In the afternoon, Miss Julia Turner of Antioch College under whose supervision the domestic science class of the college is preparing lunches for noon time at the public school, gave a talk, telling what had been done the past week with this experiment and what they hoped to accomplish. There was also an interesting discussion on the welfare of the children in the community. Those present were: Miss Julia Turner, Miss Mayme Baker, Mrs. D. A. Brewer, Mrs. J. H. Garlough, Mrs. W. E. Littleton, Mrs. S. W. Cox, Mrs. Ed Hackett, Mrs. Caroline Lee and the hostess Mrs. G. F. Littleton.

The Library Club will meet with Mrs. L. L. Taylor Monday afternoon, February 13 at 2:30. "Backgrounds" will be the subject of Mrs. A. E. Morgan's talk.

An entertainment "Paul Lawrence Dunbar Memorial" will be given in the Opera House, Wednesday evening, February 15. W. C. King of Dayton will give a number of readings and dialogues of Dunbar's. Music will be given by the high school students under the direction of Miss Clara Hirst. This entertainment is in charge of the Junior Class of the high school.

Miss Mary Stewart, who has just completed her kindergarten course in New York, left Sunday for Columbus, where she has secured a position in her line of work in the Columbus schools.

Mrs. Clarence Anderson spent the week-end with friends in West Liberty.

Miss Anna Cook has returned from several weeks visit in Brooklyn, N. Y., with her niece, Miss Lois Stevens, who is a student in Pratt's Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burras of North Fairfield are visiting Mrs. Burras' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ford Kershner.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Martin spent the past week in Dayton visiting friends.

Rev. A. G. McLennan of Philadelphia, was the week-end guest of his father-in-law, Dr. L. L. Taylor and preached at the union services at the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening.

Mr. Ward Garrison and sisters and Mrs. J. E. Drake attended the Farmers' Week convention at Columbus, Thursday. Mr. Drake was a delegate to the convention and spoke at one of the sessions.

Mr. and Mrs. Moberly (Mildred Baker) of Washington, D. C., spent the week-end with their aunt, Mrs. Morton Dallas and family.

Mr. C. E. Beatty and sister, Miss Margaret Beatty, went to North Lewisburg Sunday to attend the funeral of their uncle.

FREED OF CHARGE

CANTON, O., Feb. 8.—Sergeant of police Otto Miller today stood exonerated by Coroner T. C. McQuate in the shooting of Fuhrman Benson, 21-year-old North Edgewood youth, January 29, as a result of which Benson died January 31.

Coroner McQuate said he was convinced that the officer acted in line of duty.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH MCGLOONE GIBSON
DIVINE UNREST

Some woman has asked, "What is it that women want?" Then she answers the question by affirming that "what they want is contentment."

I do not believe that any thinking human being is ever content—if he is, then he lacks imagination, vision, ambition, desire—everything which makes life worth living.

Whenever I see or hear the word "contentment," I always think of a certain advertisement which showed a beautiful meadow with a background of hills and a laughing rivulet at its foot. Standing knee deep in the lush clover are a number of "contented cows."

The telegraph, with and without wires, electric lights, the radio, are only a few of the countless things which have come to us because some one has not been contented with things as they are.

Nothing in this world has ever been accomplished by the contented man or woman. Therefore it is rather unfair to call women the restless sex simply because nowadays she is voicing that discontent with her condition that has been the prerogative of man since time began.

Memo: There is no more person why women should be satisfied with things as they are than men.

ROBBER IS KILLED

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8.—An unidentified robber was shot and instantly killed here early today by Norman Kasse, merchants' policeman, who told city police he saw the man running from a jewelry store after smashing a display window. The robber had taken a dozen watches from the window, Kasse declared.

PRISONER SUICIDES

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 8.—Lucas County authorities today were seeking relatives of James Lane, 30, who hanged himself in the city prison, here, late yesterday. Lane was arrested Monday, according to police, after he had applied to a physician for narcotics.

ASPIRIN

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. New Hair Style from New York

"I've so little time to myself," says Mildred Warshaw, lovely New York City girl who lives at 1353 42nd Street Brooklyn. "That's why it's been such a help to me to learn the new way so many of my girl-friends are doing their hair. Now I just put a few dashes of Dandergine on my brush every time I use it. It makes my hair easy to dress and holds it in place. All I need is one shampoo a month, now. It stopped my dandruff, and my hair is always gleaming and silky, instead of looking dull and kinky like it did before I started using Dandergine."

Dandergine does more to bring out the natural color, the gleam and lustre of your hair, than any shampoo or treatment. It removes all the dust, grime and oily film from your hair—tones and refreshes your scalp—keeps dandruff away. All drug stores have the 35c bottles. Lovely hair and a healthy scalp for a few cents!—Adv.

85 YEARS of Life Insurance IDEALS and SERVICE!

An ideal became a reality when, on February 1st, 1843, "The Mutual Life of New York" issued its first policy. The business of life insurance on the mutual plan started in America then and there.

Priority in its field is not the Company's claim to greatness—age in itself is no great distinction. The Mutual Life began with high ideals of business conduct, which still prevail. It aims at quality and to be highly honorable in all its dealings.

In its relations with policyholders and their representatives The Mutual Life has an outstanding record; and it quotes with pride from the report of the last periodical examination of its affairs by the Insurance Department of the State of New York:

"A large volume of new business, selected according to the company's high standards was placed on the books. The rate of mortality has declined to a very low point and as a result it was possible to distribute to policyholders dividends according to successive increasing scales. Investments are particularly well secured. At the same time policy contracts have been liberalized and clarified, and the treatment accorded to the policyholders and their representatives has been eminently fair and just."

SOCIAL MEETING OF MISSION SOCIETY HELD

More than fifty people enjoyed the dinner and social meeting of the Second Auxiliary, Woman's Home Missionary Society, First M. E. Church, in the church parlors, Monday evening. A covered dish dinner was served with the tables gaily decorated with valentines.

A short program followed the dinner, opening with a hymn. The Bible reading was given by Miss Martha Crawford and Mrs. C. L. Spencer led in prayer. Two letters of appreciation, received from the superintendent of Aiken Hall, Olive Hill, Ky., where Tera Ramey received a Christmas gift from the society, were read by the corresponding secretary, Miss Cora Williams.

Mrs. Spencer, evangelism secretary, reported that 214 calls had been made to those ill and shut-in during the past three months. Mrs. Oren Ledbetter, president of the society, announced the Day of Prayer for all missionary societies, February 24, when meetings will be held at the First Reformed Church at 2 o'clock and 7:30.

Miss Clara Marshall read chapter five of the study book, "World Adventure," and the program arranged by Mrs. V. L. Faires, closed with a hymn.

Hostesses of the evening were: Mrs. Allen Haines, chairman; Miss Imo Marshall, Mrs. John Bradford, Mrs. Charles Riddell, Mrs. Ben Chambliss, Mrs. J. C. Dodds, Mrs. Robert Luce, Miss Cora McDonald and Miss Eula Custis.

WEBER-GILROY VOWS TAKEN EARLY WEDNESDAY

St. Bridget Church was filled with relatives and friends of the couple, when Miss Elsie Weber and Mr. Thomas Gilroy, both of this city, were united in marriage Wednesday morning at 7:45 o'clock. The Rev. Father David Powers officiated at the nuptial high mass.

Miss Alice McGeeney, Dayton, formerly of this city and Mr. William Kearney, Xenia, were the attendants.

Miss Weber was attractively attired in rose beige crepe with a becoming hat of a corresponding shade. Miss McGeeney wore rose crepe and both the bride and her attendant wore wrist corsages and fur neckpieces.

Miss Eleanor McDonnell sang several nuptial solos and the church choir, also sang. Miss McDonnell sang "Ave Maria" during the communion.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilroy and their attendants left immediately for Dayton where breakfast was served at the Grey Manor. They will take a short trip before returning to Xenia to reside at their furnished home on W. Second St.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gilroy are popular in the city and their marriage occasioned much interest. Mrs. Gilroy has been buyer for some time at the Jobe Brothers Store and is a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club. Mr. Gilroy is employed at The R. A. Kelly Co.

Women of the White Chapel community will hold the third meeting of the vegetable cooking project, sponsored by the Farm Bureau, at the home of Mrs. Henry Weiss, Friday afternoon at 3:30. Salads will be the subject for the afternoon, with Mrs. Harvey Kyle, assisting Mrs. Weiss. Any women outside the community, interested in the project are invited to attend.

An Old Recipe to Darken Hair

By JANICE RANDALL

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyerth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

CONFERENCE MILLER NUPTIALS, TUESDAY

The marriage of Miss Esther Miller, 141 Fremont Ave., Springfield and Mr. Chester M. Confer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Upton Confer, Yellow Springs, was solemnized Tuesday morning at 10:45 o'clock at the Yellow Springs Methodist Church, parsonage, the Rev. Mr. Patton officiating.

Only members of the immediate families witnessed the ceremony. The couple had no attendants.

The bride wore a two-piece frock of Copenhagen blue georgette, over a peach crepe slip, fashioned with accordion pleated skirt in front. She wore slippers and hat of black satin completed her ensemble. She also wore a corsage of pink roses.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride after the ceremony, when fifteen guests were entertained. Mr. and Mrs. Confer left later for Detroit, Mich. to spend the remainder of the week. They will reside on the Bee Road, off the Yellow Springs Pike.

Mrs. Confer is a graduate of Springfield High School with the class of 1924 and the Springfield Business College the following year. Mr. Confer attended high school in Yellow Springs and was formerly manager of the Forest Hill Dairy Farm near Cedarville. He is now farming.

"HEART PARTY" IS ENJOYED AT CHURCH

Sixty young people of the First Reformed Church enjoyed the "heart party" arranged by the Christian Endeavor Society, at the church, Tuesday evening. A covered dish dinner was served, at tables appointed in red, with lighted red tapers and favors of tiny candies.

The party was favored with the presence of Dr. Young of Philadelphia, Pa., who chanced to be in the city for the day, and who gave an impromptu talk. Other speakers and their subjects were:

Mr. L. G. Henshaw, "Heart's Ease"; Margaret Neeld, "Whole-Hearted Christian Endeavor"; Olive White, "Heart Disease"; Miss Beebe, returned missionary, "The Secret of the Happy Heart." Donald Devoe introduced each speaker in a clever manner.

Miss Esther Smith gave two splendid readings. Orchestra music completed the program. After the dinner and program, games were enjoyed.

REPORTS NOT AVAILABLE ON SOCIAL SERVICE LEAGUE DRIVE

With no final report yet available, the progress of the one-day drive for funds for the Social Service League, has been favorable. E. H. Heathman, chairman of the drive committee, said Wednesday.

The solicitors reporting so far have received a large amount of cash and a number of substantial pledges. Mr. Heathman, however, was reluctant to state how near the $25,000 goal of the drive the amount would come.

Although it was expected to wind up the drive with the one-day solicitation of the entire city Tuesday, it is not expected that a total report can be made for a few days.

Solicitors are urged to make their reports and turn in their money pledges to the Social Service League as soon as possible.

Cannovers covered the entire business section of the city Tuesday afternoon, following a luncheon for the Rotary, Kiwanis and Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Residential sections of the city were solicited by neighborhood teams and in this manner the entire city was covered to obtain funds.

ALLEGED HOG THIEF WILL BE ARRAIGNED FOR PETIT LARCENY

Cliff Osborne, 40, Clinton County, confessed hog-thief, is expected to be arraigned before R. O. Copsey, Justice of the peace, Wednesday, on a charge of petit larceny in connection with the theft of a 300-pound hog from the T. J. Wright farm, Winchester Road, off the Wilmington Pike, last Thursday night.

Osborne was fined a total of $150 several days ago by Mayor John W. Prugh on charges of possessing liquor, failing to have his auto equipped with proper brakes and failure to have proper license plates. He was committed to the County Jail for non-payment.

Osborne's two brothers, Frank and Preston, also arrested last Saturday, were ordered released Wednesday upon the recommendation of Prosecutor J. C. Marshall, who declared Cliff Osborne did not implicate his brothers in the hog theft.

He also assumed full responsibility for liquor found in his auto by police and other illicit fluid discovered in a raid on his home. Claiming sole ownership of the booze, he automatically exonerated his brothers from charges of possessing liquor.

WOMAN SENTENCED AS HUSBAND SLAYER

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Rose Prochny, 38, of Lakewood, today faced an indeterminate sentence of from one to twenty years in the Marysville reformatory, following her conviction here on a manslaughter charge, in connection with the shooting of her husband, Julius Prochny, January 13, last.

Mrs. Prochny had contended the shooting was an accident, saying the revolver was discharged while she was attempting to "scare" her husband.

SNOWSLIDES ARE RESULT OF QUAKE

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Feb. 8.—Immense snowslides were precipitated by the earthquake which rocked this vicinity for approximately thirty seconds Monday night, it was disclosed today. The slides occurred along the Alaska range west of Cook Inlet. Wall paper was cracked and dishes toppled off shelves by the tremor here. Considerable excitement reigned in public places during the shock, which was the most severe of the winter.

GIRL, DRESSES, GONE

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 8.—Lacelle Hinks, 15, high school freshman and two of her dresses were reported missing to police here today by the girl's mother.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief. At how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight. —Adv.

HARD ARTERIES

Hardening arteries indicate high blood pressure, which means that the blood in the heart and blood vessels is under too great a tension—a condition which may end life suddenly.

High blood pressure, indicated by hard arteries, heart palpitation, dizziness and difficulty in breathing, is the penalty of our abnormal habits of living. We place too great a strain on the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming "limp" or sluggish, fails to cleanse the blood of the toxic poisons formed in food waste. The whole system then becomes toxic, with stomach, kidneys, heart and blood vessels affected.

It is generally recognized that the liver occasionally needs a little help. There is nothing better for this, as medical men know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall has been found to be a great stimulant for the liver. The genuine, pure ox gall is to be had, dainty and tasteless, in the form of Dioxol tablets. Each tablet represents 10 drops of pure ox gall and costs less than 2c at good druggists. To be sure of getting the genuine, look for the name Dioxol and picture of ox's head on the package.

SOCIAL MEETING OF MISSION SOCIETY HELD

More than fifty people enjoyed the dinner and social meeting of the Second Auxiliary, Woman's Home Missionary Society, First M. E. Church, in the church parlors, Monday evening. A covered dish dinner was served with the tables gaily decorated with valentines. A short program followed the dinner, opening with a hymn. The Bible reading was given by Miss Martha Crawford and Mrs. C. L. Spencer led in prayer. Two letters of appreciation, received from the superintendent of Aiken Hall, Olive Hill, Ky., where Tera Ramey received a Christmas gift from the society, were read by the corresponding secretary, Miss Cora Williams.

Mrs. Spencer, evangelism secretary, reported that 214 calls had been made to those ill and shut-in during the past three months. Mrs. Oren Ledbetter, president of the society, announced the Day of Prayer for all missionary societies, February 24, when meetings will be held at the First Reformed Church at 2 o'clock and 7:30.

Miss Clara Marshall read chapter five of the study book, "World Adventure," and the program arranged by Mrs. V. L. Faires, closed with a hymn.

Hostesses of the evening were: Mrs. Allen Haines, chairman; Miss Ino Marshall, Mrs. John Bradford, Mrs. Charles Riddell, Mrs. Ben Chambliss, Mrs. J. C. Dodds, Mrs. Robert Luce, Miss Cora McDonald and Miss Eula Custis.

WEBER-GILROY VOWS TAKEN EARLY WEDNESDAY

St. Brigid Church was filled with relatives and friends of the couple, when Miss Elsie Weber and Mr. Thomas Gilroy, both of this city, were united in marriage Wednesday morning at 7:45 o'clock. The Rev. Father David Powers officiated at the nuptial high mass.

Miss Alice McGeeney, Dayton, formerly of this city and Mr. William Kearney, Xenia, were the attendants.

Miss Weber was attractively attired in rose beige crepe with a becoming hat of a corresponding shade. Miss McGeeney wore rose crepe and both the bride and her attendant wore wrist corsages and fur neckpieces.

Miss Eleanor McDonnell sang several nuptial solos and the church choir also sang. Miss McDonnell sang "Ave Maria" during the communion.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilroy and their attendants left immediately for Dayton where breakfast was served at the Grey Manor. They will take a short trip before returning to Xenia to reside at their furnished home on W. Second St.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gilroy are popular in the city and their marriage occasioned much interest. Mrs. Gilroy has been buyer for some time at the Jobe Brothers Store and is a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club. Mr. Gilroy is employed at The R. A. Kelly Co.

An Old Recipe to Darken Hair

By JANICE RANDALL

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

REPORTS NOT AVAILABLE ON SOCIAL SERVICE LEAGUE DRIVE

With no final report yet available, the progress of the one-day drive for funds for the Social Service League, has been favorable. E. H. Heathman, chairman of the drive committee, said Wednesday.

The solicitors reporting so far have received a large amount of cash and a number of substantial pledges. Mr. Heathman, however, was reluctant to state how near the $5,200 goal of the drive the amount would come.

Although it was expected to wind up the drive with the one-day solicitation of the entire city Tuesday, it is not expected that a total report can be made for a few days. Solicitors are urged to make their reports and turn in their money pledges to the Social Service League as soon as possible.

Canvassers covered the entire business section of the city Tuesday afternoon, following a luncheon for the Rotary, Kiwanis and Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Residential sections of the city were solicited by neighborhood teams and in this manner the entire city was covered to obtain funds.

POCKETBOOK LOST IN 1922 IS FOUND

LANCASTER, O., Feb. 8.—Containing a check for $1000 drawn on a defunct bank, in place of $30 in cash, a pocketbook lost in 1922 by G. W. Johnston was returned to him recently.

The wallet was found in the basement of the city building here between the pages of an old court docket by Harry Stadler, superintendent of the city gas department. Johnston said today that he left the wallet at the gas office after paying a bill in 1922.

ALLEGED HOG THIEF WILL BE ARRAIGNED FOR PETIT LARCENY

Cliff Osborne, 40, Clinton County, confessed hog-thief, is expected to be arraigned before R. O. Copsey, justice of the peace, Wednesday on a charge of petit larceny in connection with the theft of a 300-pound hog from the T. J. Wright farm, Winchester Road, off the Wilmington Pike, last Thursday night.

Osborne was fined a total of $150 several days ago by Mayor John W. Prugh on charges of possessing liquor, failing to have his auto equipped with proper brakes and failure to have proper license plates. He was committed to the County Jail for non-payment.

Osborne's two brothers, Frank and Preston, also arrested last Saturday, were ordered released Wednesday upon the recommendation of Prosecutor J. C. Marshall, who declared Cliff Osborne did not implicate his brothers in the hog theft.

He also assumed full responsibility for liquor found in his auto by police and other illicit fluid discovered in a raid on his home. Claiming sole ownership of the booze, he automatically exonerated his brothers from charges of possessing liquor.

RUNNING AWAY FROM PROBLEMS

Constantly we read of people who have mysteriously disappeared. Modern life travels fast, and many can't keep up with its pace, or they won't try.

In many cases such disappearances are due to amnesia or mental strain beyond people's ability to bear, and only sympathy can be felt. But the husbands who willfully desert their families and drop out of sight, the wives who voluntarily abandon their children, show a yellow streak that the world cannot forgive. The boys and girls who leave home without adequate reason bring grief and anxiety to parents, and the world asks them to repent and return. Nothing is solved by running away from the problems that life sets for us to solve.

IGNORANCE OF LAWS

Many of the states, and perhaps all of them, have enacted many laws which the average person violates without knowing it, and to enforce which practically nothing is done. How are we going to create a law abiding country, if we pass laws, and then forget all about them?

Formerly people had the idea that if anything was going on in the community that they did not like, the whole problem was solved if they got a law passed against such offenses. But there is no magic authority in laws so that they enforce themselves.

It would be a useful thing in every state legislature to have one committee working constantly for the repeal of laws that have become obsolete and have ceased to represent the sentiment and customs of the community.

The parents who order their children to do thus and so fail to insist on obedience, soon find that the youngsters run the whole household. The state that passes laws and forgets to enforce them, provides a kind of go as you please community to live in. Of course when wrongdoing affects people's lives seriously, they become indignant and insist on enforcement. The machinery of the law moves and the lawbreakers discover that the state can not be trifled with. A simplified code of law is easier to enforce, because the public and the police forces can keep its provisions more clearly in mind, and violations become more conspicuous and attract more complaint and protest.

REMUS' THEATRICAL STUNTS

George Remus, the Cincinnati bootleg king and wife slayer, now an inmate of the Lima state hospital for the criminal insane, declined a chance to appear before the court of appeals, when the hearing on his petition for a writ of habeas corpus seeking his release from the hospital, was scheduled to take place. What's the matter with George? There is no jury to pass upon the case this time and he perhaps thought it would be useful to repeat some of his actions of the Cincinnati trial. It has been intimated that Remus, when and if released, will appear upon the vaudeville stage, and assuming that he would follow such a course, one of the paragraphs remarked the other day that before introducing his monologue he should politely invite his audience to stand with bowed heads for a moment in memory of his murdered wife.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

TO BE APPRECIATED

"We must rid ourselves of the 'hangover' idea that the worker wants only money. He wants the thrill of knowing how much he counts for in the thing on which he works."

These are the words of Whiting Williams, one of the best authorities on labor and labor conditions in the world. And when he talks about "the thrill of knowing how much he counts," Williams is right. Men and women who work, if they are normal human beings, will never be satisfied with mere wages, no matter how adequate those wages are. They want appreciation. Nothing is more normal to the human being than the love of appreciation. Nothing is crueler than ingratitude. The man or woman who withholds the thoughtful, appreciative word for fear it will spoil somebody, is abnormally cruel.

ETERNAL LIFE

In the next age of man, Wiggam, able writer on scientific things, thinks man might be made to live forever. There is high speculation among scientists on the possibilities of prolonging life past the average age of 57 which it has now reached. It's all interesting. But we have immortal life now. Logic, theology, and science all seem to have established the fact that the spark of life is indestructible. We live on—somewhere. Isn't it the wise thing to go on that assumption in our plans? If character is not destroyed with death, what do we do on considerable importance.

THE GREATEST LAXITY

There is much talk these days about the laxity of college students—in their social and moral behavior. Truthful analysis will probably show that in behavior students are about the same as they have been for generations. The real laxity is the failure to understand that college is a place for training and expansion of the mind. The real laxity is mental laziness. Some students are dropped for what are known as bad moral habits. A far greater number are dropped because they won't seize the best opportunity they will ever have for training the mind.

FATIGUE OF DELAY

Let us call it the fatigue of delay. It is the tired, worn out feeling that comes from putting off all sorts of little tasks and big ones, duties and demands. Worrying about something we have to do is so much harder than doing it. Experts say procrastination is one of the symptoms of a coming nervous breakdown. Better say that the habit of putting things off is one of the causes of a nervous breakdown. Jobs done quickly, as soon as we face them, go easily. Jobs put off now fast. Weariness comes from waiting to do something.

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

—By— BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—On the subway the other day, all the way from Wall street to Grand Central station, a large, impressive Latin party in a morning coat calmly smoked a cigar. The guard, summoned by some indignant woman passengers endeavored without success to make him understand the taboo on smoking and although I thought the fellow a blooming nuisance, I couldn't help admiring his nerve. He got away with something no born New Yorker would every try, in a million years.

Some of my southern friends, visiting the city and doing the theatres with vengeance, have complained that the southern accents employed by the players in "Coquette," a drama of adultery below the Mason and Dixie line, are false, grating and distressing to the trained ear. I could not agree with them, because when I saw "Coquette," I thought I had, for the first time heard an excellent counterfeit on the stage of the so-called drawl of my fatherland. It may be that in my years of exile some nuances of inflection have eluded me. My friends also announced that in all their excursions in the Times Square district they were best pleased by their ticket buying for "The Royal Family," the drama said to be molded in some slight degree after the home life of the Barrymores. They found "Coquette" a melancholy set of blues marred by one murder and one suicide. "Excess Baggage" they were amused by, and they also awarded the palm to "Rio Rita" and "Rosalia," both of the latter Ziegfeld shows shows. "Paris Bond" they approved of because its argument was in favor of adultery. For their literary luggage on the return trip, they chose "The President's Daughter" and "Companionate Marriage." Primed with quotations from these and with chatter of the ruddy dramas of Broadway, they will for months confound their neighbors with their sophistication, they tell me. And they will wind up by saying, "But I wouldn't live in New York if you gave me the town!"

Of all night working armies in New York, the grey horde of office building cleaning women interests me most. They drift apologetically into the palaces of industry just as the stenographers are carefully applying the last of the lipstick and swigging down the last of the carefully cached gin. With dull and wondering eyes they regard these casual birds of paradise as they jam on their smart little helmets, clutch their near-fur coats about their provocative figures and wiggle out into Madison avenue, or Park or Fifth as the case may be. Then they fall to the job of mopping and scavenging, and if the truth must be told, the freeing of discouraging fingermarks on the virgin walls of the boss' office. If there has been a world-shaking cable sent into the office in the morning, all it means to the scrubwoman is an extra flutter of yellow scraps for her dust pan. An enterprising member of the sisterhood doubtless could garner in material for "SNAPPY STORIES" if she were sufficiently imaginative to piece together the clandestine notes which fall under her broom, but so far as I have been able to observe, the average cleaning woman in a big office neglects her opportunities on this score.

Among the mysteries-as-yet which I hope to solve some day, I include:

The fact that the Lexington avenue subway crosses its four tracks four times between Grand Central and the Bronx. The downtown tracks climb over the uptown tracks. The local tracks make a complete loop to the left and then to the right of the express tracks. The express tracks, not to be outdone, dive under the local tracks. I guess it's just to make it harder.

Influence of Days of Week in Speculation

All keen psychologists know that most members of the widely celebrated human race are influenced somewhat by the day of the week. Men do not feel the same toward the world on Monday as they do on Wednesday or Saturday and this even affects their attitude toward buying and selling securities.

This being true, wouldn't the logical time for the majority of people to buy stocks be on Monday? They have been to church the day before and received spiritual comfort which created a happy, optimistic frame of mind. Moreover, at the first of a new business week, everybody is starting off with high hopes of accomplishing much. If you buy on Monday, then you have your stocks all ready to share in the advance as the week gains momentum. What, then, could be more natural than for most people inclined to buy stocks at all to do so on Monday? If you are a bit more shrewd than the rest, wouldn't the saggy move be to sell your stocks on Monday when everybody else is buying and bidding up prices?

No, despite the seemingly unassailable logic of outwitting the crowd by selling them your stocks on Monday, the cold facts are that in the long run, Monday is the worst day of the week for selling and the best day for buying. You are likely to find more bargains on Monday than on any other day. Hence it is unwise to sell in such a market.

The explanation is partly that after returning from church, one's wife sees her husband staring gloomily at the stock page, with a what-the-use expression on his classic features, and she exclaims: "Elmer, I want you to get shot of those stocks tomorrow and quit worrying about them!" Be that as it may, unbiased statistics show that the most numerous drops in stock prices, and the biggest ones, occur on Monday—even though the seemingly logic of the situation demands that they do just the reverse.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

HOW THE FEMININE EFFECT IS ACHIEVED

Much is being said of the return to the feminine type of beauty. Fashion writers tell you that clothes are getting away from the close fitting slinkiness of a short time ago. The mode in hair dress is losing its austere simplicity, coming more to the little elaborations that suggest daintiness and femininity—bobs, waves, a tiny knot at the nape of the neck. Ears may be suggested or illusive half displayed but they are not emphasized.

If you seek to follow the feminine mode in beauty, you must lay more stress on the clearness and transparency of your complexion itself than upon your make-up touches. You will not tolerate the harsh, weatherbeaten appearance that the winter bequeaths to the unprotected skin. Give your skin daily treatment with a good cleansing cream, a skin-clearing, beautifying skinfood that will lighten its tone, and an astringent, skin-toning lotion to freshen you up, and close the pores, and bring out all the beauty of your skin's surface. Then, for the most natural effect, use a cream rouge in the color that most nearly approximates your own blood color. Pinch your skin so the natural color will come to the surface, then match your rouge accordingly, or match it to the inner surface of your lip. There is a certain shade of rouge, a red raspberry, that, I believe, is the closest approach to true blood color that has ever been achieved. The blonde can use a brighter red geranium shade of rouge and still appear natural, or any woman can use the lighter tones at night.

The secret of making your powder look natural is a good foundation. If you are conservative in your make-up, you will need no more than the astringent, skin-toning lotion with which you finish your beauty treatment, unless your skin is dry. The dry skin should always have a protective foundation to guard it from harshening winds in winter and scorching sun in summer. Avoid using a heavy vanishing cream that is likely to be drying. The softer semi-creams, or balms, are much kinder to the skin, and also give you a much daintier, more natural appearance.

Softness is one of the chief attributes to the feminine kind of beauty. However, you can, if you are skillful, use just about all the beautifying devices there are, and still have your sweet, girlish appearance.

Bright, attractive, red lips are no longer classed among the extreme. The present day world is so accustomed to seeing red lips, that those which are colorless or only slightly pinkish look positively queer. Lip-stick, carefully applied with well-blended edges, will never detract from your natural and feminine appearance.

My DEAR FOLLOWERS

Please do not depend upon answers from me for conditions that should have the immediate personal attention of a physician, and do not depend upon my advice for such advice, for even though your questions can be answered in the column, and answered immediately, it is at least four weeks before the answer can appear.

My Diet and Health column is a syndicated feature appearing all over the United States and Canada, and is written and sent out from New York. This means it has to be written four weeks in advance. The column creates great interest wherever it appears and its combined mail from the different places is enormous. In order to be able to handle this mail and be helpful to you, we have formulated the following rules, and unless they are complied with your letters cannot receive attention.

1. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. They will be forwarded to my New York office. Sign your name as evidence of good faith; it will not be a market.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Instead of serving meat at lunch why not substitute a fruit dish occasionally? You will find it appetizing and a change from the usual diet. Either banana or apple fritters made a delightful dish for the simple lunch.

Lunch Fruit Cup Banana Fritters Lettuce Salad Rolls Caramel Cookies Tea or Milk

SUGGESTIONS

Food Salad A good food salad that can be used as the main dish at lunch time is made with a cup of canned baked beans, one-half onion, two large lettuce leaves, one cold boiled potato and mayonnaise.

Dice the onion and potato, Shred lettuce leaves. Thin mayonnaise with very little vinegar and stir through beans. Add onion, potato and lettuce and stir mixture.

The quantity of mayonnaise to be used is determined by the amount of moisture desired in the salad. Served with a sweet pickle. It makes a healthy, appetizing dish. If a more concentrated one is wished, a slice of hard-boiled egg can be placed on the surface of the salad.

Original Game

Use the numbers from large wall calendar. Easy number combinations from five up to 100 (all ending in cipher or five) are marked on a board of any desired dimensions. Long finishing nails are driven in the center of each number. The number 100 is placed very nearly in the center of the board, and to make the game still more interesting a few red numbers are placed here and there. Each player is supplied with six rubber jar rings, and standing at a certain distance aims to ring the numbers. Black numbers add to the score and red numbers deduct, the player reaching the goal (1,000 points) first wins the game.

Attractive Kitchen

Make your kitchen as attractive as possible, carrying out a color scheme and using cheery curtains. Light woodwork, a cheerful plant in the window and a convenient arrangement of the furniture will all help make your work easier.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Why was M. T. Everhart, ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall's son-in-law, so afraid he'd incriminate himself, if he satisfied the senate oil investigating committee's curiosity?

That is, why was he so afraid of it, if that was the whole story that was finally told to the committee?—his version of that little $230,500 transaction between Harry F. Sinclair and Fall, back in 1922, in which Everhart says he acted as messenger boy, to carry the money.

That testimony couldn't possibly have incriminated him, at any stage of the investigation, because there wasn't anything criminal in Sinclair's purchase of an interest in a New Mexico ranch of Fall's, for $230,500—if that's all there was to it—the way Everhart explained it the other day, to the senate investigators.

Yet Everhart stood the senators off for four long years, on the ground that he might incriminate himself, if he answered their questions.

It isn't supposed to be fair to make a man incriminate himself, as Sir-in-law Everhart had the oil "probe" badly bunkered, until, recently, Senator Tom Walsh brought himself of a special act of congress, taking all the criminality (if any) out of Everhart's testimony, insofar as he personally was concerned—after the investigators weren't after Everhart's scalp, anyway.

To oblige Walsh, congress passed the act.

His excuse gone, Everhart either had to testify or go to jail for contempt of the senate.

He testified. Taken by itself, his testimony doesn't appear to amount to much—just an account of a ranch deal between Fall and Sinclair. But when we consider it in connection with some other things, we begin to realize that it leaves the defense with quite a few new details to clarify when the Fall-Sinclair trial reopens in April.

Looking backward, in 1922, Fall (then secretary of the interior), leased Teapot Dome (government oil land), to the Sinclair interests. Soon afterward he came into possession of $230,500 in Liberty bonds, which Everhart got for him—somewhere.

The government's lawyers charged that the bonds were a bribe to Fall, for the Teapot lease, but they couldn't prove it. All they were sure of was that the Continental Trading company, a Canadian concern, had had the bonds, then that Everhart had had them (but nobody assumed that he had done anything more than transport the bankroll) and finally that Fall got them.

Fall had never given any leases to the Continental. There was no evidence to hook him up with any suspicious deal with that outfit. There was the weak link in the government's chain—pretty darned weak.

However, query—

Did Everhart get the bonds directly from the Continental, or did somebody else get them and give them to him, to give to Fall? If so, who?

That's what Everhart wouldn't tell, for four years.

Then it came out.

Sinclair gave the bonds to Everhart.

But, said Everhart, they were to pay for a one-third share which Sinclair was buying in Fall's ranch. They intended to turn it into a glorified country club.

Where was the country club? Why, they never got that far with their plan.

But Sinclair got a dead or some such thing, to show for his $230,500?

No, that was a formality they neglected.

Anyway, the senators consider the incident a testimony to Everhart, as a safe man, to trust with large sums of money.

Living and Loving

Plight of the Lovelorn

Dear, dear, the world is full with heart sick, discouraged souls who think they are through with life because their sweethearts have turned away from them. They are sure they cannot go on living. There is nothing to live for, they think, and the future is dark and dreary. But they survive. Every one of them. And some day they wake up to think back and laugh, wistfully a bit, perhaps, but surely, in the blessedness of some new-found happiness. And once more the world is a paradise and life glorious and very much worth while. A girl writes:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: For the past several months I have been keeping steady company with a young man with whom I am deeply in love, and he seemed to be with me. I was very happy. But about four weeks ago he stopped coming without telling me why. I am considered a very nice girl among my friends. I see him every day going to work, but he only speaks and never asks for any dates. Please, dear Mrs. Lee, won't you help me to win him back, for I can't live without him. I don't want to. My life is ruined and I can never love anyone else. BABE."

You must face the fact that the young man has lost interest in you. Waste no time or thought on trying to revive his love for you. Just forget him and concentrate all effort on keeping other friends and things. You can do it if you will but honestly and sincerely try. His dropping you without cause or explanation indicates that he is not fair. That ought to help you to realize that in the end you are better off without him.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

What the Robin Redbreasts Found in the Snow!

Peter had not noticed it before, but now that Mrs. Robin called attention to it, he saw there was something red sticking up out of the snow. He followed after Mr. and Mrs. Robin as those birds partly flew, partly hopped over to find out what it was. Redbreasts got there first of course, and by the time Peter arrived upon the scene both the birds had caught hold of their find in their beaks and were tugging at it with all their might, trying to drag it out of the half frozen snow.

The boy added his strength to theirs and finally, after a desperate pull, out the red thing came and so suddenly that, although the two birds managed to keep their footing, they went staggering off in different directions.

The boy toppled over backward clutching the prize, the snow flying into his eyes and mouth. Jumping quickly to his feet he looked down at what he held in his hand and saw—a red bandanna handkerchief.

"Well, of all things!" exclaimed Peter. "I have seen this before. Unless I am very much mistaken this is the very handkerchief the hired man lost last fall when he was helping dad to re-lay the broken down part of the old stone wall. How surprised he will be when I tell him how and where I found it!"

The birds hopped to his side and heard what he said.

"Oh dear me, how disappointing!" mourned Mrs. Robin. "Here Redbreast and I have been counting on the prize to make a colored lining for our nest. Now you say it belongs to some one."

Her husband interrupted. "Now, wifie, don't worry! What if it does, we can find something just as good. Don't you remember our home last spring, how pretty it was, all interwoven with those very threads found by you? You really don't need this red rag, and surely you would not think of claiming it if it belongs to some one else?"

"I didn't say that it belongs, I said that it did belong," corrected Peter, hurriedly, on seeing

Mrs. Robin's disappointment, "and I am perfectly certain that its owner has no more need of his handkerchief and would be very glad if you would take it. Here it is, friends. What are you going to do with it?"

"Wind it all about the outside of our nest!" cried the Robin Redbreast. "Won't it look just beautiful?"

"Perhaps," agreed Peter. "But remember the handkerchief is red, and red can be seen a long distance. Aren't you afraid it will betray where your home is to your enemies?"

"We haven't any enemies," said Mr. Robin in a pleased tone. "All the birds like us—we mind our own business and they let us alone—the humans are our friends—in fact we like them so well that we build just as near their homes as we can. Oh, I forgot! Cats do try their best to harm us, but, after all, they discover our nests no matter where they are hidden, or how dull they are. No, I must say that I can think of no good reason why we Robins should not have our homes as gay as we wish them."

Peter could have told them a good reason, but since the Robins didn't think of it he decided not to. Peter knew a number of boys who, if they should ever discover the red handkerchief high in the trees would know at once that it was draping a nest and they would lose no time in climbing the tree and stealing the eggs. And Peter made up his mind to keep his eye on the home of the Redbreasts and do his best to see that no harm befell his cheerful feathered friends.

RUNNING AWAY FROM PROBLEMS

Constantly we read of people who have mysteriously disappeared. Modern life travels fast, and many can't keep up with its pace, or they won't try.

In many cases such disappearances are due to amnesia or mental strain beyond people's ability to bear, and only sympathy can be felt. But the husbands who wilfully desert their families and drop out of sight, the wives who voluntarily abandon their children, show a yellow streak that the world cannot forgive. The boys and girls who leave home without adequate reason bring grief and anxiety to parents, and the world asks them to repent and return. Nothing is solved by running away from the problems that life sets for us to solve.

IGNORANCE OF LAWS

Many of the states, and perhaps all of them, have enacted many laws which the average person violates without knowing it, and to enforce which practically nothing is done. How are we going to create a law abiding country, if we pass laws, and then forget all about them?

Formerly people had the idea that if anything was going on in the community that they did not like, the whole problem was solved if they got a law passed against such offenses. But there is no magic authority in laws so that they enforce themselves.

It would be a useful thing in every state legislature to have one committee working constantly for the repeal of laws that have become obsolete and have ceased to represent the sentiment and customs of the community.

The parents who order their children to do thus and so fail to insist on obedience, soon find that the youngsters run the whole household. The state that passes laws and forgets to enforce them, provides a kind of go as you please community to live in. Of course when wrongdoing affects people's lives seriously, they become indignant and insist on enforcement. The machinery of the law moves and the lawbreakers discover that the state can not be trifled with. A simplified code of law is easier to enforce, because the public and the police forces can keep its provisions more clearly in mind, and violations become more conspicuous and attract more complaint and protest.

REMUS' THEATRICAL STUNTS

George Remus, the Cincinnati bootleg king and wife slayer, now an inmate of the Lima state hospital for the criminal insane, declined a chance to appear before the court of appeals, when the hearing on his petition for a writ of habeas corpus seeking his release from the hospital, was scheduled to take place. What's the matter with George? There is no jury to pass upon the case this time and he perhaps thought it would be useful to repeat some of his actions of the Cincinnati trial. It has been intimated that Remus, when and if released, will appear upon the vaudeville stage, and assuming that he would follow such a course, one of the paragraphs remarked the other day that before introducing his monologue he should politely invite his audience to stand with bowed heads for a moment in memory of his murdered wife.

Influence of Days of Week in Speculation

All keen psychologists know that most men of the widely celebrated human race are influenced somewhat by the day of the week. Men do not feel the same toward the money on Monday as they do on Wednesday or Saturday and this even affects their attitude toward buying and selling securities.

If you buy on Monday, then you have your stocks all ready to share in the advance of the week's gains momentum. What, then, could be more natural than for most people to be natural than for most people to buy stocks at all to do so on Monday? If you are a bit more shrewd than the rest, wouldn't the cagey move be to sell your stocks on Monday when everybody else is buying and hiding up prices?

Now, despite the seemingly unassailable logic of outwitting the crowd by selling them your stocks on Monday, the cold facts are that in the long run, Monday is the day of the week for selling and the best day for buying. You are likely to find more bargains on Monday than on any other day. Hence it is unwise to sell in such

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

HOW THE FEMININE EFFECT IS ACHIEVED

Much is being said of the return to the feminine type of beauty. Fashion writers tell you that clothes are getting away from the close fitting slinkiness of a short time ago. The mode in hair dress is losing its austere simplicity, coming more to the little elaborations that suggest daintiness and femininity—bangs, waves, a tiny knot at the nape of the neck. Ears may be suggested or illusive half displayed but they are not emphasized.

If you seek to follow the feminine mode in winter, you must lay more stress on the clearness and transparency of your complexion itself than upon your make-up touches. You will not tolerate the harsh, weatherbeaten appearance that the winter bequeaths to the unprotected skin. Give your skin daily treatment with a good cleansing cream, a skin-clearing, beautifying skinfood that will lighten its tone, and an astringent, skin-toning lotion to freshen you up, and close the pores, and bring out all the beauty of your skin's surface. Then, for the most natural effect, use a cream rouge in the color that most nearly approximates your own blood color. Pinch your skin so the natural color will come to the surface, then match your rouge accordingly, or match it to the inner surface of your lip. There is a certain shade of rouge, a red raspberry, that, I believe, is the closest approach to true blood color that has ever been achieved. The blonde can use a brighter red geranium shade of rouge and still appear natural, or any woman can use the lighter tones at night.

The secret of making your powder look natural is a good foundation. If you are conservative in your make-up, you will need no more than the astringent, skin-toning lotion with which you finish your beauty treatment, unless your skin is dry. The dry skin should always have a protective foundation to guard it from harshening winds in winter and scorching sun in summer. Avoid using a heavy vanishing cream that is likely to be drying. The softer semi-creams, or balms, are much kinder to the skin, and also give you a much daintier, more natural appearance.

Softness is one of the chief attributes to the feminine kind of beauty. However, you can, if you are skillful, use just about all the beautifying devices there are, and still have your sweet, girlish appearance.

Bright, attractive, red lips are no longer classed among the extremes. The present day world is so accustomed to seeing red lips, that those which are colorless or only slightly pinkish look positively queer. Lip-stick, carefully applied with well-blended edges, will never detract from your natural and feminine appearance.

Diet and Health

My DEAR FOLLOWERS: Please do not depend upon answers from me for conditions that should have the immediate personal attention of a physician, and do not depend upon the column for such advice, for even though your questions can be answered in the column, and answered immediately, it is at least four weeks before the answer can appear.

My Diet and Health column is a syndicated feature appearing all over the United States and Canada, and is written and sent out from New York. This means it has to be written four weeks in advance. The column creates great interest wherever it appears and its combined mail from the different places is enormous. In order to be able to handle this mail and be helpful to you, we have formulated the following rules, and unless they are complied with, your letters cannot receive attention.

1. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. They will be forwarded to my New York office. Sign your name as evidence of good faith; it will not be a market.

The explanation is partly that after returning from circulation, wife sees her husband staring gloomily at the stock page, with a what's-the-use expression on his classic features, and she exclaims: "Elmer, I want you to get shot of those stocks tomorrow and quit worrying about them!" Be that as it may, unbiased statistics show that the most numerous drops in stock prices, and the biggest ones, occur on Monday—even though the seemingly logic of the situation demands that they do just the reverse.

used in any way. (When I answer you in the column, I use one initial.)
2. Write legibly and with a pen—if your handwriting is not clear, get someone to write for you, or use a typewriter. Do not write more than 200 words. Remember the enormous number of letters I get!

3. When you ask for material which we offer in the column from time to time, you must enclose a large-sized, self-addressed stamped envelope (8 x 10 in.) and two cents. The address must include your full name, street and number, town and state. (Do not simply write "City," for we cannot tell which city it is.) The booklet on Petersizing—gaining and reducing—is the only one for which you must include ten cents in coin extra. (Only one letter will be sent to a letter.)

4. Do not ask for diagnosis or individual treatment; I am not in private practice in any way. Your questions will be answered in the column as soon as possible if they are of general interest and can be answered in a news-article for something similar to the questions you want discussed and consider yourself answered when you see them, whether your initials are appended or not. I must answer questions collectively many times in order to save time and space.
5. Allow at least three weeks to elapse before thinking your request for material has gone astray or is not answered because you have not followed the rules. Allow a much longer time for an answer to appear in the column. Don't forget to include the s. a. e. and two cents with your request for any material, and the

MENU HINT

Instead of serving meat at lunch why not substitute a fruit dish occasionally? You will find it appetizing and a change from the usual diet. Either banana or apple fritters make a delightful dish for the simple lunch.

Lunch
Fruit Cup
Banana Fritters
Lettuce Salad
Caramel Cookies
Tea or Milk

SUGGESTIONS

Food Salad
A good food salad that can be used as the main dish at lunch time is made with a cup of canned baked beans, one-half onion, two large lettuce leaves, one cold boiled potato and mayonnaise.

Dice the onion and potato, Shred lettuce leaves. Thin mayonnaise with very little vinegar and stir through beans. Add onion, potato and lettuce and stir mixture.

The quantity of mayonnaise to be used is determined by the amount of moisture desired in the salad. Served with a sweet pickle. It makes a healthy, appetizing dish. If a more concentrated one is wished, a slice of hard-boiled egg can be placed on the surface of the salad.

Original Game

Use the numbers from large wall calendar. Easy number combinations from five up to 100 (all ending in cipher or five) are pasted on a board of any desired dimensions. Long finishing nails are driven in the center of each number. The number 100 is placed very nearly in the center of the board, and to make the game still more interesting a few red numbers are placed here and there. Each player is supplied with six rubber jar rings, and standing at a certain distance aims to ring as many black numbers as possible. Black numbers add to the score and red numbers deduct, the player reaching the goal (1,000 points) first wins the game.

Attractive Kitchen

Make your kitchen as attractive as possible, carrying out a color scheme and using cheery curtains. Light woodwork, a cheerful plant in the window and a convenient arrangement of the furniture will all help make your work easier.

additional ten cents in coins if you desire the booklet on reducing and gaining. If you ask for more than one article, better send a large and double-stamped envelope. I shall run these rules at stated times to remind you and to keep the newcomers in line.

Your messages telling me how much you enjoy the column and how much benefit you derive from it, are an inspiration to me and to the followers, and make our work happier and therefore more helpful. So I feel like adding a last rule. Save some of your 200 words to continue this practice!

NOTE:—Please send ten cents in COIN and fully self-addressed stamped envelope with orders for pamphlets on reducing and gaining.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Why was M. T. Everhart, ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall's son-in-law, so afraid he'd incriminate himself, if he satisfied the senate oil investigating committee's curiosity?

That is, why was he so afraid of it, if that was the whole story that he finally did tell to the committee?—his version of that little $230,500 transaction between Harry F. Sinclair and Fall, back in 1922, in which Everhart says he acted as messenger boy, to carry the money.

That testimony couldn't possibly have incriminated him, at any stage of the investigation, because there wasn't anything criminal in Sinclair's purchase of an interest in a New Mexico ranch of Fall's, for $230,500—if that's all there was to it—the way Everhart explained it the other day, to the senate investigators.

Yet Everhart stood the senators off for four long years, the ground that he might incriminate himself, if he answered their questions.

It isn't supposed to be fair to make a man incriminate himself; so Sin-in-law Everhart had the oil "probe" badly bunkered, until, recently, Senator Tom Walsh brought himself of special act of congress taking all the criminality (if any) out of Everhart's testimony, insofar as he personally was concerned—after the investigators weren't after Everhart's scalp, anyway.

To oblige Walsh, congress passed the act.

His excuse gone, Everhart either had to testify or go to jail for contempt of the senate.

He testified. Taken by itself, his testimony doesn't appear to amount to much—just an account of a ranch deal between Fall and Sinclair. But when we consider it in connection with some other things, we begin to realize that it leaves the defense with quite a few new details to clarify when the Fall-Sinclair trial reopens in April.

Looking backward, in 1922, Fall (then secretary of the interior), leased Teapot Dome (government oil land), to the Sinclair interests. Soon afterward he came into possession of $230,500 in Liberty bonds, which Everhart got for him—somewhere.

The government's lawyers charged that the bonds were a bribe to Fall, for the Teapot lease, but they couldn't prove it. At they were sure of was that the Continental Trading company, a Canadian concern, had had the bonds, then that Everhart had had them (but nobody assumed that he had done anything more than transport the bankroll) and finally that Fall got them.

Fall had never given any leases to the Continental. There was no evidence to hook him up with any suspicious deals with that outfit. There was the weak link in the government's chain—pretty darned weak.

However, query—Did Everhart get the bonds directly from the Continental, or did somebody else get them and give them to him, to give to Fall? If so, who?

That's what Everhart wouldn't tell, for four years.

Then it came out.

Sinclair gave the bonds to Everhart.

But, said Everhart, they were to pay for a one-third share which Sinclair was buying in Fall's ranch. They intended to turn it into a glorified country club.

Where was the country club?

Why, they never got that far with their plan.

But Sinclair got a dead or some such thing, to show for his $230,500?

No, that was a formality they neglected.

Anyway, the senators consider the incident a testimony to Everhart, as a safe man, to trust with large sums of money.

Living and Loving

Plight of the Lovelorn

Dear, dear, the world is full with heartless, discouraged souls who think they are through with life because their sweethearts have turned away from them. They are sure they cannot go on living. There is nothing to live for, they think, and the future is dark and dreary. But they survive. Every one of them. And some day they wake up to think back and laugh, wistfully a bit, perhaps, but surely, in the blessedness of some new-found happiness. And once more the world is a paradise and life glorious and very much worth while. A girl writes:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: For the past several years I have been keeping steady company with a young man with whom I am deeply in love, and he seemed to be with me. I was very happy. But about four weeks ago he stopped coming without telling me why. I am considered a very nice girl among my friends. I see him every day going to work, but he only speaks and never asks for any dates. Please, dear Mrs. Lee, won't you help me to win him back, for I can't live without him. I don't want to. My life is ruined and I can never love anyone else."

You must face the fact that the young man has lost interest in you. Waste no time or thought on trying to revive his love for you. Just forget him and concentrate all effort on keeping yourself interested in other friends and things. You can do it if you will but honestly and sincerely try. His dropping you without cause or explanation indicates that he is not fair. That ought to help you to realize that in the end you are better off without him.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

What the Robin Redbreasts Found in the Snow!

Peter had not noticed it before, but now that Mrs. Robin called attention to it, he saw there was something red sticking up out of the snow. He followed after Mr. and Mrs. Robin as those birds partly flew, partly hopped over to find out what it was. The Redbreasts got there first of course, and by the time Peter arrived upon the scene both the birds had caught hold of their find in their beaks and were tugging at it with all their might, trying to drag it out of the half frozen snow.

The boy added his strength to theirs and finally, after a desperate pull, out the red thing came and so suddenly that, although the two birds managed to keep their footing, they went staggering off in different directions.

The boy topped over backward clutching the prize, the snow flying into his eyes and mouth. Jumping quickly to his feet he looked down at what he held in his hand and saw—a red handkerchief.

"Well, of all things!" exclaimed Peter. "I have seen this before. Unless I am very much mistaken this is the very handkerchief the hired man lost last fall when he was helping dad to re-lay the broken down part of the old stone wall. How surprised he will be when I tell him how and where I found it!"

The birds hopped to his side and heard what he said. "Oh dear me, how disappointing!" mourned Mrs. Robin. "Here Redbreast and I have been counting on the prize to make a colored lining for our nest. Now you say it belongs to some one."

Mr. Robin in a pleased tone. "All the birds like us—we mind our own business and they let us alone—the Humans are our friends—in fact we like them so well that we build just as near their homes as we can. Oh, I forgot! Cats do try their best to harm us, but after all, they discover our nests no matter where they are hidden, or how dull they are. No, I must say that I can think of no good reason why we Robins should not have our homes as gay as we wish them."

Peter could have told them a good reason, but since the Robins didn't think of it he decided not to. Peter knew a number of boys who, if they should ever discover the red handkerchief high in the trees would know at once that it was draping a nest and they would lose no time in climbing the tree and stealing the eggs. And Peter made up his mind to keep his eye on the home of the Redbreasts and do his best to see that no harm befell his cheerful feathered friends.

"REDBREAST AND I HAD BEEN COUNTING FOR OUR NEST."

Delaware Game Gives Xenia Chance For Revenge

FRIDAY NIGHT VISITORS TWICE BEAT CENTRAL AT TOURNAMENT

Scribe Searches History To Find Confer And Katherman Coached Squads Victims Of Jinx—Anxious To Turn Tables

By PHIL FRAME

Delaware High School, nemesis of Central High School basketball teams in 1921 and 1922 in the semi-finals of the Southern Division of the annual state basketball tournaments conducted by Ohio Wesleyan University will appear here for a game with the Blue and White quintet Friday night.

With this opportunity for revenge, Coach Kolb's pets are harboring thoughts of evening an old score.

It will be recalled that Xenia was twice eliminated by Delaware on successive years in the semi-finals of the state tourney, on each occasion after the Blue and White teams had won four straight games.

In 1921 Xenia first reached the semi-finals under the guidance of Harold Confer. The squad that season included Kenneth Hudson, Bill LeSourd, Paul Boxwell, "Bud" Owens and Moore.

Xenia won its first round game with Chillicothe 22 to 14. In the second round Urbana Rural was eliminated 14 to 8 by Confer's proteges. Then in the third round Xenia created a new tournament record by shutting out Hillsboro 24 to 0 in a sensational game. Yellow Springs was the victim, 16 to 10, in Central's fourth tourney conquest.

And then along came Delaware and Xenia succumbed 13 to 10. History repeated itself the following year with Jerry L. Katherman as the coach. Robert Gagner, Russell Vannorsdall, Paul Boxwell, Bob Yeakley and Bob Douthett

With its six-game winning streak shattered in a rude and unexpected manner by Eaton, Central will not be laboring under such a strait this week and the listlessness which characterized the team's performance against the Preble County team is expected to be gone, replaced by the dash and fight demonstrated in previous contests.

Although not as a rule given to postmortems, it appears reasonable to assume that the strenuous game with Middletown the evening previous, had something to do with everything to do with the school's ragged exhibition against Eaton.

The Middletown contest was enough to exhaust any team despite a world of stamina. It was one of the well known grueling type, fast, rough and close all the way. It tapped the team's vitality. It does not seem wise that two such strong schools should have been scheduled on successive nights.

However, be that as it may, Central is not discouraged by this defeat, which under ordinary circumstances would have probably been a victory, but is preparing industriously for the Delaware fracas.

Delaware has much the same kind of a record as Xenia this season. After several early season defeats, the team has come to life and won five or six straight games, including a 42 to 27 victory over Bucyrus last Saturday night, which indicates a strong team.

As this is the only game scheduled for this week, Coach Kolb has been able to point his charges for the Delaware meeting. An interesting game seems probable.

HERE'S CENTRAL HIGH SQUAD THAT MAY WIN LEAGUE TITLE

Here are members of Central High School's 1922-23 basketball squad, which is undefeated in three games played in the newly-formed Miami Valley League of High School Athletics, and which is considered the favorite to win the first championship to be awarded in basketball in the new circuit.

After an unimpressive start early in the season, when four straight games were lost, the team hit its stride after the Christmas holidays and won six games in a row before the streak was broken by Eaton last Saturday night.

The Blue and White quintet has won six games and lost five to date with five more contests remaining on the schedule.

Victories have been recorded over Greenville, University of Dayton Preps, Troy, Bath Twp., Miamisburg and Middletown, while the defeats were imposed by Leesburg, Columbus Central, Wilmington, Springfield and Eaton.

Central has scored a total of 293 points, sixty-seven more than its opponents. This is an average of twenty-six per game to opponent's twenty.

Xenia's remaining games are as follows: February 10—Delaware here; February 17—St. Rose High at Lima; February 18—Withrow (Cincinnati), here; February 21—Piqua here; February 24—Sidney away.

Here is the team's record in eleven games:
Xenia 47; Leesburg 31
Xenia 49; Central (Col.) 11
Xenia 20; Wilmington 25
Xenia 17; Springfield 22
Xenia 53; Greenville 18
Xenia 20; U. of D. Preps 16
Xenia 40; Troy 17
Xenia 40; Bath Twp. 12
Xenia 29; Miamisburg 21
Xenia 28; Middletown 24
Xenia 49; Eaton 29

Third row—Weaver, guard; Karch, forward; Murrug, center; Scurry, forward; Ketter, forward; Snyder, guard.

Five, local independent quintet, Wednesday night.

The Chryslerers are determined to end the winning streak of Xenia team, which so far is undefeated on the home floor in three games played.

That the contest will be a close affair is indicated by the fact the Chryslerers recently defeated the Kelly Kubs of Dayton 31 to 17 in easy fashion, while the locals were pushed to the limit to beat the Kubs by a lesser margin earlier in the season.

As a preliminary to the main contest of the evening, the East High team will play the Red Birds, starting at 7:30 o'clock.

The Famous Auto Five is showing gradual but marked improvement with each appearance and has apparently rounded into mid-season form. The combination of LeSourd and either Gagner or Vannorsdall at forwards, Smith or Leo, pard at center, and Boxwell and Yeakley at guards, has provided the organization with one of the strongest independent quintets in the county.

Winners of these two games will participate in the finals the same evening.

Following the deciding contest, the silver loving cup, annually presented to the new grade school title-holders, will be awarded to the winning team by H. C. Pendry, city school superintendent.

A special committee will also select an all-star grade school team from the pick of the players of the city.

Central Junior High School's basketball team will play a team not yet selected in a preliminary to the championship grade game, starting at 7:15 o'clock.

The success of the banquet sponsored by the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association and the Outlook for civic co-operation as a result of the banquet, was the subject for discussion at the regular meeting of the association, in its rooms on W. Main St., Tuesday night. No special business was taken up at the meeting.

"BIKE" IS STOLEN

Theft of a bicycle from the rear door step at his home, 7 Xenia Ave., while he was attending a meeting of Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion, Tuesday night, was reported to police Wednesday by Wilbur E. Pitzer, manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples are Impurities Seeking an Outlet Through Skin Pores

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxic, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate; then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities, which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will help prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys, thus coaxing them to filter the blood impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually helps make pimples disappear.

Delaware Game Gives Xenia Chance For Revenge

FRIDAY NIGHT VISITORS TWICE BEAT CENTRAL AT TOURNAMENT

Scribe Searches History To Find Confer And Katherman Coached Squads Victims Of Jinx—Anxious To Turn Tables

By PHIL FRAME

Delaware High School, nemesis of Central High School basketball teams in 1921 and 1922 in the semi-finals of the Southern Division of the annual state basketball tournaments conducted by Ohio Wesleyan University will appear here for a game with the Blue and White quintet Friday night.

With this opportunity for revenge, Coach Kolb's pets are harboring thoughts of evening an old score.

It will be recalled that Xenia was twice eliminated by Delaware on successive years in the semi-finals of the state tournament, on each occasion after the Blue and White teams had won four straight games.

In 1921 Xenia first reached the semi-finals under the guidance of Harold Confer. The squad that season included Kenneth Hudson, Bill LeSourd, Paul Boxwell, "Bud" Owens and Moore.

Xenia won its first round game with Chillicothe 22 to 14. In the second round Urbana Rural was eliminated 14 to 8 by Confer's protégés. Then in the third round Xenia created a new tournament record by shutting out Hillsboro 24 to 0 in a sensational game. Yellow Springs was the victim, 16 to 10, in Central's fourth tourney conquest.

And then along came Delaware and Xenia succumbed 13 to 10.

History repeated itself the following year with Jerry L. Katherman as the coach. Robert Genger, Russell Vannorsdall, Paul Boxwell, Bob Yeakley and Bob Douthett

Bowling

The champion Greene County Lumber Co. bowling quintet won two out of three games from the Studebaker Commanders in a Recreation League match Tuesday night.

The league-leaders were in top form but dropped the final tussle by forty-two pins when the Studebakers collected a 903 total. Dice, with 566, had the high three-game total for the winners. Knisley led the losing team with a series of 537.

The match between the Fords and Los Rámos Cigars, scheduled for Tuesday night, was postponed. Box scores:

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE DEFEATS BLISS AT COLUMBUS 48 TO 33

Team That Defeated Wilmington Is Forced To Succumb To "Yellow Jackets"—Borst Boys Play In Top Form.

Special to The Gazette
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 8.—Tossing baskets from all angles Cedarville College last night earned its twelfth victory this season at the expense of Bliss College on the Y. M. C. A. court. The final score was Cedarville 48, Bliss 33.

Neither side exhibited anything brilliant during the first half which ended Cedarville 19, Bliss 14. Bliss guards clung to their opponents early in the game and forced the Greene County boys to score at long distance, but with the second half whistle the Columbus defense collapsed and the Cedarville forwards and center were enabled to make shorter and surer shots at the hoop. The score:

| CEDARVILLE | B. F. P. |
|-------------|----------|
| Nagley, Jr. | 9 1 13 |
| Adair, Jr. | 6 1 13 |
| Smith, C. | 5 0 10 |

HERE'S CENTRAL HIGH SQUAD THAT MAY WIN LEAGUE TITLE

Here are members of Central High School's 1927-28 basketball squad, which is undefeated in three games played in the newly-formed Miami Valley League of High School Athletics, and which is considered the favorite to win the first championship to be awarded in basketball in the new circuit.

After an unimpressive start early in the season, when four straight games were lost, the team hit its stride after the Christmas holidays and won six games in a row before the streak was broken by Eaton last Saturday night.

The Blue and White quintet has won six games and lost five to date with five more contests remaining on the schedule. Victories have been recorded over Greenville, University of Dayton Preps, Troy, Bath Twp., Miamisburg and Middletown, while the defeats were imposed by Leesburg, Columbus Central, Wilmington, Springfield and Eaton.

Central has scored a total of 293 points, sixty-seven more than its opponents. This is an average of twenty-six per game to opponent's twenty.

Xenia's remaining games are as follows: February 10—Delaware here; February 17—St. Rose High at Lima; February 18—Withrow (Cincinnati), here; February 21—Piqua here; February 24—Sidney away.

Here is the team's record in eleven games:

| | | |
|-------|--------------------|----|
| Xenia | 17; Leesburg | 31 |
| Xenia | 19; Central (Col.) | 11 |
| Xenia | 20; Wilmington | 25 |
| Xenia | 17; Springfield | 22 |
| Xenia | 53; Greenville | 18 |
| Xenia | 20; U. of D. Preps | 16 |
| Xenia | 40; Troy | 17 |
| Xenia | 40; Bath Twp. | 12 |
| Xenia | 23; Miamisburg | 21 |
| Xenia | 28; Middletown | 24 |
| Xenia | 19; Eaton | 29 |

Third row—Weaver, guard; Karch, forward; Murray, center; Scurry, forward; Kelter, forward; Snyder, guard.

DAYTON CHRYSLERS WILL MEET FAMOUS AUTO FIVE WEDNESDAY

The Dayton Chrysler, present leaders of the Commercial League, one of the Gem City's strongest basketball circuits, will appear at Central High School gymnasium for a game with the Famous Auto Five Wednesday night.

The Chrysler are determined to end the winning streak of the Xenia team, which so far is undefeated on the home floor in three games played.

That the contest will be a close affair is indicated by the fact the Chrysler recently defeated the Kelly Kubs of Dayton 31 to 17 in easy fashion, while the locals were pushed to the limit to beat the Kubs by a lesser margin earlier in the season.

As a preliminary to the main contest of the evening, the East High team will play the Red Birds, starting at 7:30 o'clock.

The Famous Auto Five is showing gradual but marked improvement with each appearance and has apparently rounded into mid-season form. The combination of LeSourd and either Genger or Vannorsdall at forwards, Smith or Leonard at center, and Boxwell and Yeakley at guards, has provided the organization with one of the strongest independent quintets in the county.

The elimination series of two games, prior to the finals, will be held Saturday morning, February 11. The fourth and fifth grade champs will meet at 9 a. m. and the sixth grade champions and the "B" squad of Central Junior High at 10 o'clock.

Winners of these two games will participate in the finals the same evening.

Following the deciding contest, the silver loving cup, annually presented to the new grade school titleholders, will be awarded to the winning team by H. C. Pendry, city school superintendent.

A special committee will also select an all-star grade school team from the pick of the players of the city.

Central Junior High School's basketball team will play a team not yet selected in a preliminary to the championship grade game, starting at 7:15 o'clock.

Her Color Went Black. She Was Frightened To Death

Mrs. Waite, New Brighton, writes: "That deadly indigestion and gastritis, caused by constipation made my color go black. I was frightened to death, and I feel your laxative saved my life. I take them every night now for precaution, and do not fear an attack of constipation poisoning any more."

Jamestown News

Mrs. W. S. Galvin and Mrs. John Mock, performed the duties of hostesses to the members of the George Slagle Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, at the home of Mrs. Galvin, on Tuesday afternoon. The program designated events of the month of February. The members responded to roll call by quotations from either Washington or Lincoln. Two well-prepared papers were read, Mrs. J. A. Bevan, "St. Valentine's Day," and Mrs. Matthew Hagler, "The Signers of the Declaration of Independence." Miss Galvin favored the company with instrumental numbers, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Delegates were elected to the Continental Congress, which will convene at Washington, D. C.

Mr. Walter Kohlhaugen, who is a student at the Purdue University at Lafayette, Ind., has spent a week with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Max Kohlhaugen, between semesters.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Church of Christ, will meet on Wednesday afternoon at the church. Mrs. Jennie Buckles will preside. After devotions and the routine of business has been transacted, Mrs. Hubert S. Snyder will have charge of the program, assisted by other members. The topic for discussion is "Our Missionary Map of the World."

Miss Marjorie Galvin has returned home from a two month's stay in New York City, with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Spahr, Mrs. Jane Roberts and C. E. Roberts, Mrs. Roy Webb were in Dayton on Wednesday, attending the funeral service of Mr. Bert Fairchilds, who was killed in an automobile accident on Sunday evening. Mr. Fairchilds is survived by his wife and a son and daughter, of Dayton. He is a nephew of Mrs. Jane Roberts.

Mr. Blair McElroy and son, Donald, of Chicago, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Barnhart, the last of the week. They came to Jamestown from Cincinnati, where they had been on business.

The Advance Club met with Mrs. R. C. Turnbull, Monday afternoon. The topic for consideration was "Astronomy." An interesting program was rendered, as different scientific truths were elaborated.

Mrs. J. A. Bevan, Mrs. J. A. Carpenter, Mrs. J. A. Barnes, Mrs. N. Hunter, read papers on the functioning of different planets and their relative position to each other. The members responded to roll call by repeating "Current Events of Science." Mrs. Leslie D. Vesey presided over the program and she concluded with a splendid description of Mars, to which she had given much thought and study.

On Friday afternoon the senior and junior classes of the Jamestown High School visited Central High, in Xenia, for the purpose of witnessing a demonstration, which was educational in its presentation and scope and was very impressive and instructive. Classes felt well repaid for the time spent. They were accompanied by two high school teachers, the Misses Lelia Fudge and Josephine Randall.

On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. W. H. Rockhold received the members of the Rural Improvement Club. After the routine of business was disposed of, a Valentine party was enjoyed. The usual literary program being dispensed with, each member bringing a valentine, which was placed in a box and then drawn out. Members responded to roll call by reading the verse on the valentine they drew, which caused much merriment. Other features were added for the amusement. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Ernest Rockhold in serving a delicious refreshment course.

Mrs. C. B. Smith will be the hostess for the month of March.

Mr. Roy J. Moorman and sons, Robert and Ralph, motored to Cincinnati on Sunday, to visit with relatives. Mrs. Moorman, who has been in the city for two weeks, on account of the illness and death of her mother, Mrs. Louise Grimes, will return home with them.

Miss Anna Crampton, of Xenia, spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Nettie Myers, who continues very ill.

Miss Lucille St. John, of Waynesville, was the guest over the week end, of Mr. and Mrs. H. Bland. On Sunday evening Mr. Glenn Bland accompanied her home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Maddux, of near Cedarville, were guests on Sunday, of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Cushman.

The Parent-Teachers Association will serve a supper in the auditorium of the school building on Friday evening. The meal will be served in cafeteria style, to which the public is invited.

Mrs. Jane Roberts entertained on Sunday, with a family dinner, Mr. and Mrs. James Finn and daughters, Dorothy and Ruth; Miss Henrietta Marshall, of Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Webb and daughters, Bertha and Betty; Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Spahr and Miss Helen and C. E. Roberts.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Blessing, of Jeffersonville, were guests of Miss Emma Strong, the first of the week.

Jamestown relatives have received a message from Mrs. G. R. Bardill and Miss Belle Neiberger, that they had landed, on schedule, at Madeira and were starting on their inland tour.

Mr. Donald Shickley, of West Carrollton, was at his home here over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ferguson spent Sunday in Columbus, with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dun.

Miss Sarah Short had for her guests, on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Short, of Dayton, whom she accompanied home for a few week's visit, with relatives.

Mr. L. S. Farquhar and family, of London, were calling on Jamestown friends, on Sunday.

There will be an all-day sewing at the United Presbyterian parsonage, on Thursday, by the Woman's Missionary Society, for the Columbia Hospital, at Wilkinsburg, Pa.

Miss Irene Dillingworth, a returned missionary, from Burma, India, will give an address, on Sunday morning, at the M. E. Church, under the auspices of the W. F. M. Society. Special music will be a feature. The Rev. L. D. Vesey announces that in the evening there will be an entertainment celebrating the birthday of Lincoln. The anniversary will be dramatized. Rev. Vesey will also give an address.

On Saturday afternoon, Hubert S. Snyder will give a sermon at the United Presbyterian Church, for the Rev. Gray, for the commemoration of the Lord's Supper on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Hunter have had for their guest, Mrs. Etta Hunter, son, of Springfield, Mrs. Dolson, a sister of Mrs. Albert Wickerham, who is now at the Hunter home.

Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Henry entertained twelve guests, on Friday evening, with a Valentine social, creating an enjoyable time. A three course dinner was served.

Miss Leontine Jenks, Miss Alberta Snyder and Miss Marjorie Galvin spent Saturday in Cincinnati, where Miss Jenks with the violin and Miss Snyder and Miss Galvin at the piano, broadcast over Station WLW at 3:30 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Snedden, of Fairfield, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Klatt.

After the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Presbyterian Church, had rendered its program, the annual election of officers was held. Mrs. L. L. Gray was re-elected president; Mrs. Fred Nelson, vice president; Miss Della McPenter, Mrs. J. A. Barnes, Mrs. N. Hunter, read papers on the functioning of different planets and their relative position to each other. The members responded to roll call by repeating "Current Events of Science." Mrs. Leslie D. Vesey presided over the program and she concluded with a splendid description of Mars, to which she had given much thought and study.

Mrs. W. S. Galvin and Mrs. John
Mock, performed the duties of hostesses to the members of the George Slagle Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, at the home of Mrs. Galvin, on Tuesday afternoon. The program designated events of the month of February. The members responded to roll call by quotations from either Washington or Lincoln.
Two well-prepared papers were read, Mrs. J. A. Bevan, "St. Valentine's Day," and Mrs. Matthew Hagler, "The Signers of the Declaration of Independence." Miss Galvin favored the company with instrumental numbers, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Delegates were elected to the Continental Congress, which will convene at Washington, D. C.Mr. Walter Kohlhaugen, who is a

Wednesday, attending the funeral service of Mr. Bert Fairchild, who was killed in an automobile accident on Sunday evening. Mr. Fairchild is survived by his wife and a son and daughter, of Dayton. He was a nephew of Mrs. Jane Roberts.
Miss Blair McElroy and son, Donald, of Chicago, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Barnhart, the last of the week. They came to Jamestown from Cincinnati, where they had been on business.The Advance Club met with Mrs.
R. C. Turnbull, Monday afternoon.
The topic for consideration was "Astronomy." An interesting program was rendered, as different scientific truths were elaborated.
Mrs. J. A. Bevan, Mrs. J. C. Carr, Mrs. J. A. Barnes, Mrs. N. C.
Hunter, read papers on the functioning of different planets and their relative position to each other.
The members responded to roll hold, to which she had held.On Friday afternoon the senior and junior classes of the Jamestown High School visited Central High, in Xenia, for the purpose of witnessing a demonstration, which was educational in its presentation.

The program was very impressive and instructive. Classes felt well repaid for the time spent. They were accompanied by two high school teachers, the Misses Lelia
Fudge and Josephine Randall.On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs.
W. H. Rockhold received the members of the Rural Improvement Club. After the routine of business was disposed of, a Valentine party was enjoyed. The usual literary program being dispensed with,
each member bringing a valentine, which was placed in a box and then drawn out. Members responded to roll call by reading the verse on the valentine they drew, which caused much merriment. Other features were added for the amusement. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Ernest Rockhold in serving a delicious refreshment course.

Appreciative persons who have seen Erich Von Stroheim's new picture, "The Wedding March," in the cutting room, predict that Zasu Pitts will emerge from it as the Bernhardt of the screen.

It is no secret that Von Stroheim himself thinks that Miss Pitts (she's a wife and mother) is one of the really great actresses films have developed. She won fame in Von Stroheim's "Greed," but has had few opportunities to enhance her reputation since then, because producers are reluctant to film stories built around a youthful tragedienne.

Cutters are going through the usual ordeal of slicing on a Von Stroheim film. When they started their job, it was 100,000 ft. long. It will be released in ten reels, despite the director's wish to have it released in two parts of exhibition on successive days. One of the little movie theaters wants to show the production in its entirety as Von Stroheim made it, extending the exhibition over several evenings. On the stage, Shaw's "Back to Methuselah" was spread over three evenings.

Pictures are still made to fit into a vaudeville program; a twenty-reel "Wedding March" might draw crowds in New York and one or two other cities, but not in the small towns where most movie goes live. Incidentally, one company proposed to compile a sequel to Von Stroheim's "Foolish Wives," from the cuttings left over after that memorable film was assembled.

It is no secret that Von Stroheim of the moment is that Tom Mix is going to South America to make pictures. "Westerns" have worn out their welcome in U. S. movie houses, producers say. However, they're still in demand abroad and Mix, biggest drawing card of them all, is going to cater particularly to that trade, with stories laid on the Argentine pampas.

READ THIS FIRST:

Jill Justin, ultra-modern and as lambently lovely at 20 as the Saga Lily, starts out on a moonlit night in August, accompanied by her brother Tony, to attend a harvest festival.

The two run into an automobile hold-up. Jill is kidnapped by bandits, but later rescued by Jack Stuart and returned to her home in Elliston, W. Va.

It is the old story retold. Jack stays for a visit and remains to wed the adorable Jill.

Life is kind for the first three years to Jack and his wife, for they are the proud parents of a pair of twin boys and a girl.

Then comes the Great Event. Stuart and Tony Justin buy a tax title to property in the hills, incorporating an old abandoned silver mine.

This mine proves to be valuable in tungsten-bearing ore, and Pat Sweeney, father of Mary, or "Mike," as she is called, buys a fourth interest in the tax title for $100,000. Jack and Tony engage to transfer the ore to Pittsburgh in the Glass company trucks. On the finish of this job they are to receive the last installment of their $50,000 apiece. Some fear is entertained that hijackers may hold up a truck in the belief that it is carrying moonshine. To safeguard this risk Pat Sweeney and Big Bill Guernsey precede the trucks in the flivver Sooky Ann.

Previous to the start of trucking Pat takes a party, including Jack and Jill Stuart, Peter and Tony Justin, himself and Mike and Father Ryan, who, as Tony expresses it, "horns in" at the last moment, to Pittsburgh.

One of the results of this trip is the offer of a dancing engagement, made Jill and Tony, by the hotel management in Pittsburgh. The exhibition they give is a fancy dancing. Another result is the cementing of the already well-set dislike established between Jill and Mike.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XVII

Her uneasy glance roved over the crowd, searching, seeking, hunting for some glimpse of her man. Where was he? Why wasn't he with her to back with her in the spotlight of her young popularity? Did he even know that the wife had left so short a time before as a shabby unknown, had blossomed in the brief interval—a short half hour—into a celebrity? Where—oh, where was her man, her Jack?

Forgotten now the chattering, flattery, flattery young things surrounding her. Almost wildly her gaze darted from one group to another, seeking, hunting for the tall form in blue serge. Then she caught sight of her father and her responding to her frantic wig-wagging, made his way to her side, wondering at her manner.

"Have you seen, Jack—lately?" she questioned him, in an agonized whisper. He shook his head, staring at her perplexedly.

"Well—go and find him!" she commanded, fiercely. "He's with—her!"

Being with "Her" evidently constituted good and sufficient reason for instant, decisive, peremptory action on Jill's part—or on that of her friends. By the emphasis placed on the pronoun one might, almost, have said it constituted grounds for legal action.

"Pipe down, little woman, pipe down!" counseled Peter, sortily. "There's no call for being worried about Jack. He isn't lost. C'mon," he added, laying his hand on her arm. "I'll treat you to an ice cream soda. You must be thirsty after that exercise!"

He piloted her across the room to a door leading into a sort of combination grill and ice cream parlor. Potted palms twenty feet tall, in square mahogany veneered cases, with marble tops at which patrons stood in being served, filled the place.

Shaded red bulbs cast a mellow glow over the scene. A pretty waitress in a pretty white uniform took their orders, flashed them a smile in return and whisked away on her errand. Then Peter, his hand still on Jill's arm, felt the muscles go suddenly tense. At the same instant he saw and heard the cause. It was incased in a very small gown of shimmering lace and stood very close to a tall form in blue serge. On a marble counter in front of each was a "Lover's Delight," the retail price of which was 25 cents.

What Peter didn't see, and didn't know was that on the very day before Jill had asked Jack if he could spare her 50 cents to put with the dollar her father had given her to toward the purchase of a new pair of stockings. Jack had been "awfully sorry—it sure was awful to be poor, etc." And Jill had worn her old cotton stockings. And—now he was spending that sum to treat this Mike girl. . . . What Jill didn't know was that "this Mike girl" was doing the treating—that Jack Stuart had confessed frankly to her that he was "broke." Little things, insignificant things—but, oh, their vital importance in the summing up of marriage totals!

Peter Justin's keen old eyes looked on the little bit of life drama unfolding as it were, under his very nose and his heart ached for the woman at his side. Her love-dream, at its best, had been more or less of a poverty-ridden nightmare, and now . . . he stiffened at what he saw and what he knew the young wife saw. He shot a swift glance at her, noted the compressed lips and narrowed lids, and just a trace of fellow sympathy shaded his blue serge suit.

For that to which they had just been witness was not, in itself, anything for a wife to tear her hair about—that is, providing the wife's presence at the moment had been known to the two.

It was really a perfectly harmless—if rather silly—little incident, and its like has been enacted thousands of times in thousands of places by thousands of couples. It even has a name, the act being called "Eating the Filopena"—or something like that. There are, however, various ways in which the act may be performed. On this occasion recorded in this instance,

"I tried to get to you, my dear, for a word of congratulation," he told her.

the young man said: "Let us eat our bananas together as a Filopena, Miss Sweeney." To this the young woman in the shimmering gown rebelled.

"All right, but you don't have to call me 'Miss Sweeney,' you know. You might call me 'Mike'."

"Thanks. Then you must call me Jack."

"All right, Jack!"

Then they ate the Filopena together, he ate hers and she ate his. Then they laughed. At what and for why they could not have told. It was at that juncture that Jill stepped back and then out from the shadow of a palm just as if she were entering the room at the moment and had seen the two just then.

"Why, Jack!" she exclaimed, glowingly. "I thought you'd deserted me since Fame had crowned me—as—why do they call a dancing woman?"

Not by a word or action did she betray the fact that she had been witness to the eating of the Filopena. Perhaps it occurred to her that, as the Arabs say, "The tree of Silence bears the fruit of Peace," and that by remaining silent she "held an ace in the hole" that might some day give her a winning hand.

If the husband experienced any sense of guilt or felt any qualms of conscience, he managed to conceal his feelings marvellously well. Nor did the girl show any signs of embarrassment. At his wife's exclamation Jack Stuart turned toward her with a smile of large indulgence.

"I tried to get to you, my dear, for a word of congratulation," he told her, as he took her two hands in his. "But about a million flappers, and that many sheiks, were crowded around you, so what could a poor husband do?"

"We're all very proud of you, Mrs. Stuart—of both your brother and yourself," said the vision of shimmering lace and sheer hosiery, making her contribution to the pot-pourri of nice things with about the same admixture of good will and condescension that a rich brewer's daughter of the old days might have vouchsafed the minister's wife.

Peter Justin swallowed hard many times that evening to force down the lump that persisted in rising up in his throat as he watched the gallant little Jill was waiting to appear happy and keep smiling. He knew that both her heart and pride had suffered each a cruel twisting, a wrench that Time itself would never fully readjust.

In the relinquishment of the first and only opportunity ever offered them for a definite realization of their ambitions Jill and Tony made greater sacrifices even than their relatives and friends knew.

"It's tough luck, I'll say, havin' to give up th' first chance we've ever had," bemoaned Tony, after vainly trying to induce the hotel manager to keep his offer open two weeks. "And Opportunity never knocks at a fellow's door more'n once!"

"Don't ye ever think that, me boy?" consoled Pat Sweeney, patting the young man's knee with an assuring optimism as the smooth-running car glided along the highway on its return trip to Elliston.

"Old Man Opportunity will come right up and shake ye by th' hand when ye've got th' kale to tickle his palm, me boy!"

Nor did Pat Sweeney speak with the tongue of one unversed in his subject. None better than he knew the potential strength and hitting power of Spot Cash! He knew it spoke of a universal language, heard and understood the world over, as well in Timbucto as in New York or Boston; the one and only language that talked "Turkey-talk," to rich and poor, the deaf and dumb, the blind, the halt and the lame—the language that "carried on" even for the dead man years after his bones were crumbled to ashes and dust!

Pat Sweeney allowed no grass to grow under his feet in the execution of his plans once he had committed himself to a proposition.

HEALTH HINTS For Parents

The wise mother gives little heed to "diets" for her growing boy or girl, and worries not at all about their bowels. A little fig syrup gives all the help, and has none of the harm that's found in habit-forming laxatives.

Have you a boy or girl whose food doesn't seem to nourish as it should? Let them eat the same things, and just treat them to a daily spoonful of this rich, fruity syrup; watch them gain weight, see how their cheeks fill out and how appetite and assimilation improve! And a few drops will do remarkable things for an ailing infant. California Fig Syrup is a purely vegetable product, so parents need have no hesitance in giving it to infants.

California Fig Syrup is not expensive; all dealers charge but sixty cents for a generous bottle. Just make certain that it is the California product; say "California" in asking for it.

Try California Fig Syrup two weeks on any child, and let his altered appearance and actions tell the full story!

CURSED AND ABUSED HER WIFE CHARGES IN DIVORCE ACTION

Divorce is sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Geneva Thomas against John Thomas, based on grounds of extreme cruelty. They were married December 26, 1917. No children were born of the union.

Plaintiff charges her husband has cursed and abused her for about a year and also struck her. During their married life, the plaintiff worked continuously, saved her earnings and they jointly purchased certain real estate, the defendant have a joint account in the bank and have on deposit $550, largely the earnings of the plaintiff, the document adds.

A large part of the household goods were also owned by the plaintiff at the time of her marriage, she claims. Plaintiff asks to be restored to her former name of Lucas. The Peoples Building and Saving Co. is named co-defendant in the action. Plaintiff sought and has obtained a temporary restraining order enjoining her husband from withdrawing funds on deposit in

READ THIS FIRST:

Jill Justin, ultra-modern and as lambently lovely at 20 as the Saga Lily, starts out on a moonlit night in August, accompanied by her brother Tony, to attend a harvest festival.

The two run into an automobile hold-up. Jill is kidnapped by bandits, but later rescued by Jack Stuart and returned to her home in Elliston, W. Va.

It is the old story retold. Jack stays for a visit and remains to wed the adorable Jill.

Life is kind for the first three years to Jack and his wife, for they are the proud parents of a pair of twin boys and a girl.

Then comes the Great Event. Stuart and Tony Justin buy a tax title to property in the hills, incorporating an old abandoned silver mine.

This mine proves to be valuable in tungsten-bearing ore, and Pat Sweeney, father of Mary or "Mike," as she is called, buys a fourth interest in the tax title for $100,000. Jack and Tony engage to transfer the ore to Pittsburgh in the Glass company trucks. On the finish of this job they are to receive the last installment of their $50,000 apiece. Some fear is entertained that the jackers may hold up a truck in the belief that it is carrying moonshine. To safeguard this risk Pat Sweeney and Big Bill Guernsey precede the trucks in the flivver Sooky Ann.

Previous to the start of trucking Pat takes a party, including Jack and Jill Stuart, Peter and Tony Justin, himself and Mike and Father Ryan, who, as Tony expresses it, "horns in" at the last moment, to Pittsburgh.

One of the results of this trip is the offer of a dancing engagement, made Jill and Tony, by the hotel management in Pittsburgh, after the exhibition they give in fancy dancing. Another result is the cementing of the already well-set dislike established between Jill and Mike.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XVII

Her uneasy glance roved over the crowd, searching, hunting, hunting for some glimpse of her man. Where was he? Why wasn't he with her to back with her in the spotlight of her young popularity? Did he even know that the wife he had left so short a time before as a shabby unknown, had blossomed in the brief interval—a short half hour—into a celebrity? Where—oh, where was her man, her Jack?

Forgotten now the chattering, flattery, flattery young things surrounding her. Almost wildly her gaze darted from one group to another, seeking, hunting for the tall form in blue serge. Then she caught sight of her father and he responded to her frantic wig-wagging, made his way to her side, wondering at her manner.

"Have you seen Jack—lately?" she questioned him in an agonized whisper. He shook his head, staring at her perplexedly.

"Well—go and find him!" she commanded, fiercely. "He's with—her!"

Being with "Her" evidently constituted good and sufficient reason for instant, decisive, peremptory action on Jill's part—or on that of her friends. By the emphatic placing on the pronoun one might, almost, have said it constituted grounds for legal action.

"Pipe down, little woman, pipe down!" counseled Peter, softly. "There's no call for being worried about Jack. He isn't lost. 'Cmon," he added, laying his hand on her arm. "I'll treat you to an ice cream soda. You must be thirsty after that exercise!"

He piloted her across the room to a door leading into a sort of combination grill and ice cream parlor. Potted palms twenty feet tall, in square mahogany veneered cases, with marble tops at which patrons stood in being served, filled the place.

Shaded red bulbs cast a mellow glow over the scene. A pretty waitress in a pretty white uniform took their orders, flashed them a smile in return and whisked away on her errand. Then Peter, his hand still on Jill's arm, felt the muscles go suddenly tense. At the same instant he saw and heard the cause. It was increased in a very small gown of shimmering lace and stood very close to a tall form in blue serge. On a marble counter in front of each was a "Lover's Delight," the retail price of which was 25 cents.

What Peter didn't see, and didn't know was that on the very day before Jill had asked Jack if he could spare her 50 cents to put with the dollar her father had given her toward the purchase of a new pair of stockings. Jack had been "awfully sorry—it sure was awful to be poor," etc. And Jill had worn her old cotton stockings. And—and now he was spending that sum to treat this Mike girl!..... What Jill didn't know was that "this Mike girl" was doing the treating—that Jack Stuart had confessed frankly to her that he was "broke." Little things, insignificant things—but, oh, their vital importance in the summing up of marriage totals!

Peter Justin's keen old eyes looked on the little bit of life drama unfolding as it were, under his very nose and his heart ached for the woman at his side. Her love-dream, at its best, had been more or less of a poverty-ridden nightmare, and now..... she stiffened at what he saw and what he knew the young wife saw. He shot a swift glance at her, noted the compressed lips and narrowed eyes, and just a trace of fellow sympathy shaded his censure of the young man in the blue serge suit.

For that to which they had just been witness was not, in itself, anything for a wife to tear her hair about—that is, providing the wife's presence at the moment had been known to the two.

It was rather a perfectly harmless—if really silly—little incident, and its like has been enacted thousands of times in thousands of places by thousands of couples. It even has a name, the act being called "Eating the Filopena"—or something like that. There are, however, various ways in which the act may be performed. On this occasion recorded in this instance,

"I tried to get to you, my dear, for a word of congratulation," he told her.

the young man said:

"Let us eat our bananas together as a Filopena, Miss Sweeney." To this the young woman in the shimmering gown replied:

"All right. But—you don't have to call me 'Miss Sweeney,' you know. You might call me 'Mike.'"

"Thanks. Then you must call me Jack."

"All right, Jack!" Then they ate the Filopena together, he ate hers and she ate his. Then they laughed. At what and for why they could not have told. It was at that juncture that Jill stepped back and then out from the shadow of a palm just as if she were entering the room at the moment and had seen the two just then.

"Why, Jack?" she exclaimed glowingly. "I thought you'd deserted me since Fame had crowned me as—what do they call a dancing woman?"

Not by a word or action did she betray the fact that she had been witness to the eating of the Filopena. Perhaps it occurred to her that, as the Arabs say, "The tree of Silence bears the fruit of Peace," and that by remaining silent she "held an ace in the hole" that might some day give her a winning hand.

If the husband experienced any sense of guilt or felt any qualms of conscience, he managed to conceal his feelings marvellously well. Nor did the girl show any signs of embarrassment. At his wife's exclamation Jack Stuart turned toward her with a smile of large indulgence.

"I tried to get to you, my dear, for a word of congratulation," he told her, as he took her two hands in his. "But about a million flappers, and that many sheiks, were crowded around you, so what could a poor husband do?"

"We're all very proud of you, Mrs. Stuart—of both your brother and yourself," said the vision of shimmering lace and shimmering hosiery, making her contribution to the pot-pourri of nice things with about the same admixture of zood will and condescension that a rich brewer's daughter of the old days might have vouchsafed the minister's wife.

Justin swallowed hard many times that evening to force down the lump that persisted in rising up in his throat as he watched the gallant battle Jill was waging to appear happy and keep smiling. He knew that both her heart and pride had suffered each a cruel twisting, a wrench that Time itself would never fully readjust.

One hour after their return to Elliston arrangements had been completed for Jack Stuart and Tony Justin to meet Big Bill Guernsey, Pat Sweeney's all-around expert who had been in the speculator's employ for more than ten years. It was at this meeting that an agreement was drawn up regarding the sharing of profits. This agreement provided for the unlocated soldier, Davison, specifying in detail that a one-fourth share of the profits derived from the sale of all products taken from the property purchased by Stuart and Justin on a tax title he set aside in trust for the ex-serviceman. It was further agreed that every effort possible would be made to get in touch with the soldier, Davison and notify him of the disposition of his property. This arrangement, it was agreed upon by the four men present, was in accordance with human justice and square dealing, considering all the circumstances.

That all interests in this agreement, including those of the unlocated soldier, be protected, it was still further agreed that the existing circumstances called for the utmost secrecy in transferring the ore to Pittsburgh.

That same night two seven-ton trucks, exact duplicates of the Glass company trucks, bought the afternoon before by Pat Sweeney in Pittsburgh, reached their destination in the hills back of the Justin place. Every detail of the program they were to follow was carefully worked out at the meeting of the quartet. Each man knew the part he was scheduled to play and also the parts planned for the others. Many times in afteryears did Jack Stuart go back in retrospect over those carefully-worked-out plans and recall with considerable pride their perfect co-ordination in carrying through to a successful finish.
